FROM THE PRESIDENT

From my previous columns, you know about the theme I adopted for this year "Counseling Psychology: A Tribute to Uniqueness." As my term as President winds down, I want to review some of the activities focusing on capturing uniqueness. To enhance the strength and uniqueness of Counseling Psychology, a Division 17 Endowment Fund has been proposed to the American Psychological Foundation. The primary objective of this fund will be to sponsor projects that support, the science and practice of Counseling Psychology. It is my plan that by the time of the APA meetings in San Francisco the Counseling Psychology Endowment Fund will be established. Additional initiatives focusing on capturing uniqueness include the formation of a Roundtable of Section Chairs and the formation of a Past President's Council. Progress is being made on these initiatives and activities are planned for the APA meetings in San Francisco.

Accomplishments capturing uniqueness in the Science domain include the following. In March, 1998 an archival description of our specialty and the revised petition for the recognition of Counseling Psychology as a specialty within professional psychology were submitted to the Commission for Recognizing Specialties and Proficiencies in Professional Psychology (CRSPPP). APA grants specialty status to those areas of professional psychology that demonstrate distinctiveness with respect to the populations they serve, the problems they address, and the techniques or methodologies they employ. Specialty recognition is important because it informs the public about the nature and scope of services that psychologists provide, as well as the knowledge base accumulated. It is an effort to communicate what psychologists do. The expectation is that the archival descriptions for counseling, clinical, and school psychology will be reviewed and accepted by the APA Council in August, 1998. CRSPPP will be reviewing the Counseling Psychology specialty petition in October 1998. Also of interest are the proposed guiding principles for establishing research support for systematic action programs developed by the Special Task Group on Empirically Validated Treatments. These guidelines focus on the relevance of science and practice for human welfare. The STG is preparing a manuscript that will discuss the rationale for the principles.

In the domain of Diversity and Public Interest, a Special Interest Group on Disabilities has been established. Those interested in working on and discussing these issues should contact Nadya Fouad or Kathy Chwalisz. Other initiatives in progress include the Multicultural Competencies Task Force, a Task Force focusing on the public image of counseling psychology, integrating the BAPPI overarching theme of valuing diversity into the Division planning activities over the next three to five years, a school to work proposal, and a social hour dedicated to celebrating diversity on Saturday, August 15. In regard to the school to work proposal, a Multi-Division Task Force has been formed to develop a pro-active role for psychology in contributing to the school-to-work movement.

In the Education and Training domain, relevant initiatives include the psychology internship supply and demand issue, postdoctoral program accreditation, the introductory curriculum for training in psychopharmacology, high school psychology standards, and master level training and credentialing. Division 17 was well represented at the APPIC/APA Supply and Demand Conference held in November, 1997. The purpose of the conference was to propose a set of strategies and action plans based on a review of supply and demand issues in professional psychology. In addition, plans are currently being laid out for a National Conference to be co-sponsored with CCPTP focusing on Counseling Psychology in the next millennium.

The Professional Practice domain has initiatives focusing on managed care, prescription privileges, and parity for mental health with physical health. An effort is being made to identify ways in which the practice sections of various divisions can collaborate on these initiatives. An additional initiative is pursuing professional development issues of practitioners over the life span, including such phases as new professional, mid career change, pre-retirement planning, and meaningful roles in the retirement years.

Finally, last year a home page was developed. This year the Web Site Committee and the position of Web Master were structured. The Web Site Committee reviews submissions, additions, changes or updates to the home page in communication with the Web Master. This review is carried out in the context of the Web Master Policy Statement recently developed. To keep abreast of rapidly changing technology, a STG has been formed to focus on future planning and trends.

I want to thank the Executive Board for their very hard work during this busy year. In August, Louise Douce will complete her term as Vice President for Education and Training, John Westefeld as Treasurer of the Division, and Gerald Stone will complete his term as Past President. Louise has done excellent work as a Vice President and been a very strong advocate of the Division. John has improved the financial status of the Division, protected our funds, and assisted in making good use of our funds. Gerald Stone has given excellent leadership and support to the Division for many years.

The above reflects on past and present initiatives. For a view of future initiatives focusing on capturing uniqueness read the rest of the newsletter, attend the programs at the convention, enjoy the activities in the Hospitality Suite, and last but not least become active in the Division.

Finally, I want to express my gratitude to the hundreds of members who worked on behalf of the Division this year. I enjoyed serving as your President most of the time. Thank you for the opportunity. See you in San Francisco.

W. Bruce Walsh

FROM THE EDITOR

Preparing the convention issue of the Newsletter is really exciting - aside from lots of last minute scheduling changes! In this issue you will find out about all the Division 17 programs and activities scheduled in the Hospitality Suite. Plan ahead and you won't have to carry the APA program with you!

I've been editor of the Newsletter for two years (only one to go!). During this time, the Division has developed a Homepage which can serve as a source of more immediate information for members. A special task group has been developed to consider these communication issues. I am interested in hearing what you think -

* Should we continue to publish the Newsletter three times a year? As is?

* How should we use the Division 17 Homepage to provide information to members?

* Do you really read this? If you do, please let me know!!

I look forward to seeing you at APA in San Francisco. Feel free to let me know what you think about the future of the Newsletter, or just come by to say hello.

HOSPITALITY SUITE

The Suite will be located in the San Francisco Downtown Marriott in the Arthur Page Brown Suite (The Vice-Presidential Suite) Room 3056. The Marriott Hotel is at the corner of 4th and Mission Streets, just one block off of Market Street, one block from the Moscone Convention Center, the new SF Museum of Modern Art, very close to Union Square shopping, cable cars, and right on the subway for easy access to anywhere in SF.

San Francisco will also be in the midst of their annual Streetcar Festival where you can ride on streetcars from all over the world as they go from the Bay, down Market Street, to the Castro and various neighborhoods, a great way to see The City. If you have any additional questions on sights and scenery, please feel free to contact me. It will be a magnificent Convention. Wait until you see the Suite and the views of San Francisco Bay and Bay Bridge from our terrace - very special.

FROM THE VICE PRESIDENT FOR PROFESSIONAL PRACTICE

Professional Practice: Somewhere, over the rainbow...

So many of us enter into professional practice as counseling psychologists with dreams of success, hopes for service, and desire for status and achievement (otherwise, why would we have endured so many years of graduate school and post-doc training!). Over the lifespan our professional development issues evolve, change and re-cycle. Sometimes changes overtake us faster than we can fathom them (witness the unwieldy managed care phenomenon). Wherever we are in the process, we can learn from each other, young and old alike. This is all a preamble to invite you to attend a conversation hour in the hospitality suite at 10 am on Monday August 17 to discuss professional development concerns for practitioners. Drop-in and stay as long as you can.

Managed care: Current legislative efforts are being directed towards holding managed care accountable for negligence through legislation called Patient Access to Responsible Care Act (PARCA). There is bi-partisan support for this pro-consumer legislation and APA has publicly supported it along with the American Medical Association, American Dental Association, and American Occupational Therapy Association. Look for updates on this legislation.

Other legislative issues: An older piece of legislation, the Campus Security Act of 1990, is still haunting some university psychologists. This piece of legislation, although well intended, asks campus officials to report on certain crimes (such as rape), but that puts mental health professionals into a bind ethically. While psychologists are neither included nor excluded from the wording of this legislation, the ambiguity leaves it open to interpretation on an institution by institution basis. If your campus is affected negatively by this legislation please let me know, as we are working with the Practice Directorate and its lobby efforts to amend this act to exclude mental health professionals from the requirement to report.

Academy of Counseling Psychology (ACoP). See other newsletter article (p. 9) about members of the academy forming a new section in Division 17...which will provide closer links for communication between members of Div 17 and the Academy. We welcome them into Division 17 structures! See y'all at APA.

On Definitions, Decisions, and Dignity...

Last December I received a call from Dr. Gerry Stone informing me that I had been nominated by my colleagues to serve as Division 17 Council Representative for 1998. Prior to his call, I had not been approached by any Division 17 members about this nomination, so I was both surprised and flattered by the call. After receiving Dr. Stone's official letter informing me of my nomination, I indicated my willingness to have my name placed on the 1998 ballot, and I later prepared and submitted my biography and personal statement which appeared in the April 1998 issue of the Division 17 newsletter. Following publication of that newsletter, I was approached by a member of my program Dr. Linda Forrest, who voiced concern that my name appeared on the ballot, as it was her understanding that the Council seat for 1998 was to be restricted to a minority representative. As a member of my program, Dr. Forrest has been aware that I do not consider myself to be of Hispanic/Latino descent nor a member of a protected group. I am a second-generation Spanish-American, and my grandparents on both sides were Spanish citizens. My mother is also a native Spaniard and naturalized American citizen. Although definitions of "Hispanic" have varied over the years, the most current data available indicate that persons who self-identify as Hispanic typically describe their ethnic/ancestral origins as Mexican, Puerto Rican, Cuban, or Central/South American (U.S. Census Bureau Official Statistics, 1993).

I regret that I was not aware of, nor was reminded of, the nature of this "special election" when I was first informed by Dr. Stone of my nomination as Council Representative. Had I been, I would have declined the nomination at that time. Given the circumstances, however, I chose instead to withdraw my candidacy for this seat and I immediately informed Dr. Stone of my decision. With his assistance, my name was dropped from the official ballot in late April.

This entire episode, while awkward and unpleasant, has enabled me (once again) to reflect on my own ethnic identity and to clarify my identity to those who might otherwise be inclined to form erroneous conclusions. I am proud of my Spanish heritage, of my parents' lifelong sacrifices to support their children's dreams, and of their unwavering message to me and my siblings to refuse any award, recognition, or assistance from any source that was not based on our merit, ability, or achievement. It is unfortunate that we exist in a society wherein ethnicity, achievement, and support/recognition have become so hopelessly confounded. It is unfortunate that we have created institutions and policies (even some well-intentioned ones) that make it difficult, if not impossible, for competent, capable people of particular races and ethnicities to experience their life successes as "earned". My parents' message and their support helped me navigate this treacherous terrain, and, in recent weeks, this lesson "came home" to me in yet another way. Earlier this spring, my high-school senior daughter received two unsolicited four-year (full) scholarships to attend major state universities as a National Hispanic Scholar. She has politely declined both. As difficult as it is to turn down tens of thousands of dollars, I am proud of her ... and in taking the action of withdrawing my name from the "special election" for Division 17 Council Representative, I am proud of myself. My time and energy will be better spent helping my daughter create a life wherein her work and accomplishments are judged on their own merit and not on the basis of presumptions others make about her last name ...

ABPP INFORMATION

As psychology moves toward greater recognition of specialization in the profession, it becomes increasingly important to counseling psychology to nurture and sustain board certification for counseling psychologists. Counseling psychology was one of the three original specializations of the American Board of Professional Psychology (then [ABPP], the American Board of Examiners in Professional Psychology) established by a grant and at the behest of APA in 1947. About 225 practicing counseling psychologists are currently board certified and are ABPP Diplomates in Counseling Psychology.

The American Board of Counseling Psychology (ABCop) and the Academy of Counseling Psychology (ACoP) are now the two organizational structures representing counseling psychology in ABPP. The Board is charged with the development and administration of the examination in counseling psychology; while the Academy is the professional arm and represents Diplomates in Counseling Psychology. The Academy also has affiliate status for non-diplomate counseling psychologists who are contemplating taking the board examination. There is an opportunity for board certified counseling psychologists who are members of Division 17 to work in collaboration with the Division in an effort to develop greater interest in this level of specialty credentialing and in the furthering of professional identification within the specialty of counseling psychology. I would like to see the members of the Academy of Counseling Psychology organize a section of the Division devoted to promoting board certification in counseling psychology.

The section on board certification would be able to respond to the questions of those division members interested in board certification and to the needs of Division members who were board certified. The section would also provide a juxtaposition between APA Division 17 and ABPP's Academy of Counseling Psychology and allow for significant dialogue and interaction between these two groups for the benefit of the specialty.

Would those counseling psychologists who would favor the creation of such a section please write to me stating their support for creating a Section on Board Certification in Counseling Psychology within Division 17? Please send statements of support to:

The Diplomate in Counseling Psychology: What's in it for me?

At the CCPTP Mid-Year Conference in Phoenix, Arizona I made a short presentation about the procedures and logistic of applying for Board Certification from the American Board of Counseling Psychology (ABCop) - the Counseling Psychology branch of the American Board of Professional Psychology (ABPP). The presentation covered the who, what, when, where, and how of the process. Afterward a number of Training Directors commented that what was missing from the presentation was some comment on "why" one would seek the ABPP Diplomate. This short piece is my personal statement of why the ABPP has proven to be a significant achievement and designation.

Practitioner Benefits

As I reflected on the benefits to me as a practitioner, I came to the following four points:

1. At a local hospital, where hospital privileges were granted to psychologists, the application was seven pages long. The exception came on Page 1 where there was a little box that indicated the ABPP credential. If one checked "yes," then the remaining six pages of the application were unnecessary. As one of my colleagues phrased it, "The medical profession understands "Board Certification."

2. While even a doctoral degree can prove to be something of a disadvantage for managed care panels in terms of selection for service delivery, the upside of the ABPP is that it can provide an entrance to panels which might be closed since panels often have to demonstrate the quality of the services they promise to deliver. The Diplomate designation makes holders attractive to managed care organizations since it is a clear designation of quality.

3. Demonstrating competence, as a witness in court testimony, for example, is greatly enhanced by the ABPP credential. Again, in my own limited experience, I was accepted immediately as an expert witness once identified as a Diplomate in Counseling Psychology. While my experience is limited, my conversations with others has verified my personal experience.

4. I recently moved from one state to another and while there was no formal reciprocity my application for licensing was greatly aided by the Diplomate. The Academy for Counseling Psychology, the advocacy arm of ABCop, is working on just such reciprocity agreements now.

Academic Benefits

Five benefits were clearly evident after I obtained the Diplomate:

1. When our program applied for APA accreditation, both the Application and the Site Team were interested in the number of faculty holding ABPP status. This seems especially true for those programs which lean toward a greater focus on preparing practitioners.
2. The Diplomate models for students the recognized achievements of a faculty member. We may have forgotten but I invite each of us to think back to the time when we looked to our professors as models and mentors into the profession. As graduate students, we took pride in the accomplishments of our teachers. ABPP certification is a concrete example of professional achievement and student comments over the years have demonstrated to me the worth they see in it.
3. Beyond retention, tenure, and promotion, the Diplomate can pave the way to positions such as the Director of Training (TD) for a program. Obviously, many academic TDs do not currently hold the ABPP. Give some thought to this scenario, however. If the Department Chair or Dean is considering two candidates for the position. One with a Diplomate and one without - other things being equal, who will be selected?
4. In addition to advancement within one's current position, the Diplomate does contribute significantly to upward mobility within the profession. Once attained, the Diplomate becomes an important credential for all future academic positions. This is especially true for any program seeking APA accreditation and seeking a person for a position of leadership.

Personal

The Diplomate in Counseling Psychology is the single most significant recognition by peers of practical competence we have in our discipline. It is for this reason that being recognized as a

CALL FOR DIVISION FELLOWSHIP NOMINATIONS

The Division 17 Fellowship Committee invites nominations of Division members for potential election to Fellow status in the American Psychological Association. A new deadline for submission of materials to APA has necessitated earlier deadlines at the Division level. The deadline for receipt of nominations is September 1, 1998. The deadline for receipt of application materials (i.e., nominees' materials and endorsers' letters) is October 15, 1998. Late applications will not be considered in the current review cycle. Nominations may be made by any member or Fellow of the Division; self nominations are acceptable.

Under the Bylaws of the American Psychological Association, Fellowship is an honor bestowed upon members who have made an "unusual and outstanding contribution or performance in the field of psychology." Division 17 wishes to recognize its members who have had a significant impact on the specialty of counseling psychology within the areas of science, teaching and training, service delivery, administration, policy development, and/or advocacy. Seniority or professional competence alone is insufficient to achieve Fellowship. Fellows' contributions are seen as having enriched or advanced Counseling Psychology well beyond that normally expected of a professional psychologist.

To be considered for Fellow status, members must meet both APA and Division requirements. APA requirements include: (a) the receipt of a doctoral degree based in part upon a psychological dissertation, or from a program primarily psychological in nature, and conferred by a graduate school of recognized standing; (b) prior membership as an APA member for at least one year and membership in the Division through which the nomination is made; (c) active engagement at the time of nomination in the advancement of psychology in any of its aspects; and (d) five years of acceptable professional experience subsequent to the granting of the doctoral degree. Division 17

additionally requires: (a) current engagement in education and training, practice or research in counseling psychology; (b) at least three of five years of post-doctoral professional experience in counseling psychology; and (c) membership in the Division for at least one year.

Nominees for Fellow status will be asked to complete the APA's Uniform Fellowship Application and related materials, and to solicit evaluations from three or more APA Fellows, at least two of whom must be Fellows of Division 17. Completed applications are reviewed by the Fellowship Committee, which submits its recommendations to the Division's Executive Board; nominations are sent forward to the APA's Membership Committee for final approval. Members of the Fellowship Committee or Executive Board who submit evaluations of a nominee do not vote on that nominee. New Fellows are announced at the Division's annual business meeting during the APA Convention.

Letters of nomination should be sent to the Fellowship Committee Chair, Janet Helms, at the following address:

Section for Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Awareness

I want to remind members to renew their membership! This year members of the section are being asked to pay $10 dues. If you haven't already done so, please make your check payable to Div. 17 Section for LGB Awareness and send it to Julia Phillips, Ph.D. Counseling, Testing and Career Center, University of Akron, Akron, Ohio 44325-4303.

We are holding elections for Treasurer of the Section. Even though nominations were due by May 29th, if you are interested please check with James Croteau (email: croteau@wmich.edu) about the status of nominations.

The APA convention is just around the corner. We'd like you to mark these dates on your calendar and join us for section events. On Saturday, 8/15/98 the Section Executive Committee Meeting will be held in the Division Suite from 1:00 to 2:50 pm and the Section Business Meeting will follow from 3:00 pm to 4:50 pm. Our Section sponsored Symposium, entitled: "Coming Out Stories— Personal and Professional Reflections of Counseling Psychologists" is scheduled on Monday 8/17 from 10:00 am - 10:50 am in the Moscone Center, Room 303. We will be hosting a number of tables at the Division 17 roundtable discussions on LGB mentoring issues on 8/17 from 8:00 am - 8:50 am in the Yerba Buena Salon S in the Marriott Hotel. And— we will be participating in a division social hour where we will display student research as posters.

I look forward to seeing you at all of our Section events at the Convention!

Section on Health Psychology

The Section in Health Psychology is pleased to announce that we are co-sponsoring a wonderful conference on Thursday, August 13th at Stanford University. The special conference entitled, "Groups, Health and Disease: Psychosocial Approaches to Group Interventions" will feature such eminent scholars as Al Bandura, speaking on the effects of self-efficacy on health processes and outcomes, Neil Schneiderman describing the effects of group interventions with HIV positive men and women, David Spiegel discussing processes and outcomes of group interventions with breast cancer patients and Carl Thoresen describing the methods and evidence of group interventions for men and women suffering from heart disease. In addition, several one-hour workshops will be offered by experienced practitioners on group work with a variety of health problems. For more information about the conference and details on registering, please check the Conference Webpage at: <http://www-leland.stanford.edu/~vosvick/conference.html> or call Mark Vosvick at: (650) 723-2113. The conference rates are very reasonable: only $25 for professionals and $10 for students. We hope to see many of you there.

In addition to the pre-APA conference, the Section in Health Psychology is holding its General Business Meeting (open to all) on Sunday August 16th from 1-2:50 in the Div. 17 Hospitality Suite. Other APA highlights include a roundtable program (Monday August 17, 8-8:50am), entitled, "Professional roles and Opportunities in Counseling Health Psychology." Presenters for the Section will be Betsy Altmaier, Jean Eagleston, and Timothy Elliott. A second Roundtable program (Monday August 17, 9-9:50am), organized by several Section members, Cheryl Carmin, Sari Roth Roemer and Sharon Robinson Kurpius, will feature presentations from some of the authors of chapters in a forthcoming book they edited. The book, entitled, The Emerging Role of Counseling Psychology in Health Care is being published by Norton Press. Our chair, Carl Thoresen will also be making a Feature Presentation for the Health Section at APA, entitled, "Science, Spirituality and Health: Implications for Counseling" on Monday August 17th from 10-10:50.

I also want to take this opportunity to remind everyone that all the Sections are co-sponsoring a Social Hour on Monday evening, August 17th at APA. This Social Hour will feature student papers, so please plan on attending this special event Celebrating the Sections of Division 17.

Finally, the Section in Health Psychology is having an open enrollment for membership, so if you are interested in finding out more about our group and/or wish to join, please contact our Secretary/Treasurer: Cyndee McRae, Dept. of Education, University at Denver, Tel: (303) 871-2475; e-mail: CMCRAE@DU.edu or e-mail me at: MS127@cnsvox.albany.edu

Section on Ethnic and Racial Diversity

The Section on Ethnic and Racial Diversity (SERD) is planning on an active APA convention in San Francisco! First, in collaboration with the other sections' focus on the theme of mentoring, the SERD will be presenting the following two roundtable programs sponsored by Division 17: "Mentoring Graduate Students of Color in Counseling Psychology" and "Mentoring New Professionals of Color in Counseling Psychology" on Monday, 8/17, 8:00 a.m.-8:50 a.m. at the Marriott Hotel (Yerba Buena Salon 8) .

As part of its mentoring initiative, the Section is also planning to sponsor a "Conversation and Connection Lunch Hour" for interested Section members and graduate student affiliates. This will be an informal opportunity for SERD members and affiliates to network and match up with each others' common interests and to share in casual and open dialogue. More details will be sent out to SERD members and affiliates prior to the convention.

In addition, the SERD will be sponsoring a conversation hour entitled, "Contemporary Issues in Ethnic and Racial Diversity-A Town Hall Meeting" (Monday, 8/17, 5:00 p.m.-5:50 p.m.; Marriott Hotel, Nob Hill Room A/B). The focus of this program is to engage and explore the current role of ethnic and racial diversity in counseling psychology theory, research, education, and practice. Also, the Monday evening Division 17 social will be a showcase of graduate student research sponsored by the Division's sections. The Section is planning to use this opportunity to highlight graduate student research related to issues of ethnic and racial diversity in counseling psychology.

Finally, the APA convention is also the time for the SERD's annual business meetings. The meeting will be held in the Division 17 Hospitality Suite in the SF Marriott Hotel on Saturday, August 15 at 10am.

Section on Vocational Psychology

The Society and its members again will be active at the upcoming APA convention. We will host or be involved in a series of programs and social hours. More than 25 section members will participate in these programs which explicitly address topics suggested by the section members who attended last year's business meeting. In addition to our traditional symposium and roundtable programs, for the first time, we will host a conversation hour in the Division's hospitality suite. Further, the section's annual business meeting will be especially important to attend as we will discuss our upcoming 1999 conference and update everyone on the year's accomplishments. It is shaping up to be a busy and exciting convention for persons with interests in vocational psychology programming and activities. Division members and all interested persons are urged to attend the following events:

*Saturday (8/15) from 9-10:50 AM a section-sponsored symposium on "Contextual Factors in Career Service Delivery" will be presented. This is our annual featured program. The contextual factors of gender, race/ethnicity, sexual orientation, welfare-to-work initiatives and sociopolitical environment will be addressed by presenters from the US and abroad in an effort to advance our understanding of how to better serve individuals in need of career services. (Marriott, Golden Gate Salon B2)

*Sunday (8/16) from 8-8:50 AM section-sponsored roundtables on "Contextual Factors in Career Service Delivery" will occur. These roundtables will provide our symposium attendees as well as other interested persons an opportunity to discuss in an informal atmosphere various contextual issues of importance in providing career services. Table topics will cover the implications of gender, race/ethnicity, sexual orientation, organizational/world-of-work changes, socioeconomic status, and international/sociopolitical issues for career service delivery. Roundtable leaders are section members from the US and abroad with interests and expertise in their table's topic. These tables also provide a mechanism for graduate students and new professionals to connect with like-minded colleagues and to learn about the vocational section. (Marriott, Yerba Buena Salon 7)

*Monday (8/17) 8-8:50 AM the section will participate in the Division's Mentoring roundtables. Tables on teaching, research, and practice in vocational psychology each will be staffed by two senior section members with expertise in the area. This programming is meant to provide graduate students and new (or not so new) professionals with informal personal contacts with senior psychologists who have interests and experience in these important professional domains. Come with questions to ask, ideas to try out, or just to meet some section members! (Marriott, Yerba Buena Salon 8)

*Monday (8/17) from 2-2:50 PM there will be a section sponsored conversation hour. This is a new undertaking for the section and the topic is not yet finalized, but details will be announced in the section newsletter, on the section listserve and at our web site prior to the convention. (Marriott, Division 17 Hospitality Suite)

*Monday (8/17) from 3 to 4:50 PM is the Section Business Meeting. The title of this program suggests a perhaps dull or formal activity, but our annual section business meeting typically is an opportunity to catch up on news and socializing after a hectic weekend of convention activities. Our priorities are to welcome our new members (especially students), renew acquaintances and friendships, share section accomplishments from the past year and set our agenda for the coming year. (Marriott, Division 17 Hospitality Suite)

*Monday (8/17) at 6:00 PM we will join with the other sections of the Division to host a social hour. This Monday night social hour was a great success last year and so enjoyable people did not want to leave! This year it also will include a graduate student research component; selected student members from each of the Division's sections will present and be available to discuss their work. Please plan to attend.

As additional details regarding these and other convention activities emerge, they will be posted on the section's listserve and web site. Anyone may check out the latter at <http://www.umkc.edu/na/div17/vocpsych/> or section members may

Section on Women

The Section invites new and old friends to participate in our many exciting events at APA. Friday afternoon is a time that we traditionally use space in the Division 17 Hospitality Suite to work on current projects. Those involved in our working conference, "Centralizing Multiculturalism and Feminism in Counseling Psychology" will be meeting during our 2-4 work group time, we also invite others involved in projects or wanting to be involved to come by the Suite on Friday. While our working conference is full, other opportunities to get involved in the Section remain open as well as a second conference waiting to be planned.

On Saturday, we are thrilled to announce that in our Skill Development Workshop, Michelle Fine and Linda C. Powell will be dialoging on "Off-White: Creating spaces for gender(ed) and race(d) conversations." Drs. Fine and Powell are two of the co-editors of Off-White: Essays on race, power, and culture (Routledge, 1997) and how they present is as compelling as what they present.

Sunday morning we are hosting our annual Champagne Breakfast Social Hour, followed by a Conversation Hour, and Open Business Meeting. Not only is the breakfast an opportunity to celebrate Section accomplishments, it is also a time to introduce people to the Section, to forge new connections, and renew old ones. The Conversation Hour is an opportunity to discuss issues of importance to the Section. Our Open Business Meeting is where we catch up on current projects, begin new ones, review our structure and discuss Bylaw changes, report on liaison activities, and continue our work on building a community committed to advancing women. To add items to the agenda, please let Debra Noumair know by August 1, 1998.

Also at the Open Business Meeting, we will announce the recipient of the 1998 "Women of the Year" Award. When considering nominations, please note our tradition in which the recipient will give an address at next year's convention. Please send nominations for this award to Debra A. Noumair by August 1, 1998.

We would also appreciate your support for our name change Bylaws amendment to be voted on at the Division 17 Business Meeting on Sunday afternoon. As some of you may have noticed, we jumped the gun (oops!) on renaming the Section and now need to catch up with ourselves.

On Monday, the Section is sponsoring two events with all the other Division Sections, a Roundtable focused on Mentoring and a Social Hour. At the roundtable, the Section on Women is hosting two tables — one on Women in Academia with Julie Ancis and Amy Patraka and one on the Section Working Conference as a Giant Mentoring Project with Ruth Fassinger (replacing Linda Forrest) and Freda Rosenberg.

The co-sponsored Social Hour will be a unique opportunity for students to showcase their work. The Section on Women invites students to submit proposals related to women's issues. Proposals should be submitted in APA style by July 15, 1998 and adhere to the following guidelines: Proposal Cover Page: *Title of Poster (10 words or less); *Name of Primary Author, current university/college affiliation, current mailing address, primary phone number, and e-mail address; *Name of Secondary Authors, current university/college affiliation, current mailing address, primary phone number, and e-mail address; *Name of Primary Author's Faculty Advisor, current university/college affiliation, current mailing address, primary phone number, and e-mail address and Proposal Summary: *2 copies of a 500-1,000 word summary including an introduction, methods, findings, and discussion section. *Style should conform to the Publication Manual of the APA, Fourth Edition. The proposal may be transmitted as an E-mail message to jancis@gsu.edu or as an attached ASCII text file or snail mail to Dr. Julie Ancis, Department of Counseling and Psychological Services, University Plaza, Education Building Georgia State University, Atlanta, GA 30303-3083.

And finally, on Tuesday instead of yielding to APA Burnout, please join us for our Invited Address by the 1997 recipient of the "Woman of the Year", Linda Forrest. Dr. Forrest's talk, "Building Feminist Houses and Neighborhoods: Conscious Attention to Our Differences" is in alignment with the ongoing work of the Section toward inclusiveness and differentiation. This is a relatively new event that we cherish — we hope to enjoy with you.

We are accepting nominations for the governing board positions of Chair and Treasurer. Job descriptions are provided in the Section Bylaws and in the Summer issue of WomanView, our Section Newsletter. Please send nominations to Ruth E. Fassinger, University of Maryland, 3214 Benjamin Building, College Park, MD 20742 or by email at RF36@UMAIL.UMD.EDU by July 15, 1998.

We encourage folks to join the Section and participate in Section events at APA. To join, please contact Debra Noumair by email at dn28@columbia.edu. While we are very involved in our current working conference, we remain committed to the advancement of all women at all stages of development and welcome new members

Supervision and Training SIG

Purpose & Mission:

Special Interest Group on Supervision and Training serves as a forum for people who train and supervise student and professional therapists, counselors, psychologists, psychiatrists, and social workers as well as those who train and supervise clinical supervisors. The SIG aims to serve educators, researchers, and practitioners engaged in training or supervising mental health service providers.

- to stimulate research (especially collaborative & multisite endeavors), theorizing, & thinking about training and supervision in a multicultural framework
- to discuss and address practical issues arising from training or supervision
- to share ideas, experiences, insights, and knowledge
- to stimulate interest in therapist training, clinical supervision, supervisor training, and supervisor supervision
- to recognize and facilitate the development of diverse and innovative strategies related the training and supervision of therapists and supervisors
- to serve as a resource of research and practice articles and syllabi for researchers, teachers, and practitioners of supervision

Persons interested in Supervision and Training can join the ST Listserv. To become a member of the listserv send the following email message:
sub cts-l Firstname Lastname
to this email address:

A few notes:

- (1) the letter after 'cts-' is a lowercase "L";
- (2) put your first name and last name in the message above;
- (3) once you become a member you will receive all messages sent to the network;

(4) it is important to remember that when you send an email message to the network, everyone on the network reads it; and

(5) once you become a listserv member you do not have to be a permanent member and can sign off the network at any time.

Once you subscribe you will receive a welcome message explaining how the listserv works. If you have any questions please feel free to contact Nick Ladany who is coordinating this listserv from Lehigh University.

Please join us at the ST-SIG business meeting at the APA Convention in the Division 17 Hospitality Suite on Sunday, August 16, 11:00 to 11:50 am.

Please come and participate in our first ST SIG-sponsored APA event. It will take place Saturday August 15, 8:00-9:00am, Yerba Buena Salon 7, SF Marriott. Topics for the roundtable series include: Harmful Clinical Supervision, Addressing Racial and Ethnic Issues in Supervision, Psychotherapy Supervisor Development & Training, Group Supervision, Negotiating Sexual Orientation Issues in the Supervisory Working Alliance, Secrets in Supervision, Making the most of supervision, Clinical Supervision from a Developmental Perspective, Gender Issues in Supervision, Understanding and Responding to Resistant and Difficult Trainees, and Ethical Issues in Supervision.

Hypnosis SIG

We have several things going on at the APA meeting this year in San Francisco. On Saturday, August 15th, from 10:00-10:50 we will have our SIG Business meeting, which will be held in the Division 30 Hospitality Suite this year. Immediately following this meeting, Steve Dubrow-Eichel will conduct a Conversation Hour on "Practical Methods for Integrating Hypnosis into Counseling Psychology Training". On Monday, August 17th, from 2:00-2:50 p.m. the SIG will sponsor another Conversation Hour featuring Barry Serman and Arreed Barabasz who will discuss "Neurotherapy and Hypnosis"; this will be held in the Div. 17 Hospitality Suite. Dave Walling will chair the sessions on Saturday, while Arreed Barabasz will chair the session on Monday.

For Division 17 members who are not currently members of our SIG, and who have an interest in Hypnosis, please consider joining us in the SIG and in our activities in APA. If you wish to join the SIG please contact me. For those of you who are unsure about joining and about hypnosis, I'd like to refer you to an article entitled "Hypnosis allies are urging insurers to raise coverage" which appeared in the May 1998 issue of the APA Monitor. Prevention and Public Interest SIG

The Prevention and Public Interest SIG has several objectives: to bring together counseling psychologists with prevention interests through their teaching, research, or practice; to promote these interests through member networks, convention programs, and writing; and to provide linkage between counseling psychology and other professional associations committed to prevention. The annual SIG Newsletter was recently published. This issue of the Newsletter highlights prevention training in counseling psychology. If you wish a copy contact John Romano.

The SIG has organized two APA Convention events. One event is a symposium on August 17th from 8-9:50am on Prevention Training in Counseling Psychology. The title of the symposium is "Prevention Training in Counseling Psychology Programs: Preventing Violence, Racism & Neglect." There will also be an SIG Business and Network Meeting in the Division's Hospitality Suite on August 17th from 11-11:50 am. At the SIG meeting we are soliciting brief presentations and papers from members about their prevention initiatives. Contact either of the SIG Co-Chairs with questions, comments, interests.
