FROM THE PRESIDENT

For those of you who attended the National Counseling Psychology Conference, I hope the excitement of the conference remains throughout your year. What a dream come true to have such a strong group of counseling psychologists gather together! Aside from the APA conference, our conference constituted the largest gathering of psychologists in 2001. The national conference certainly was the largest group of counseling psychologists ever gathered; we had approximately 1000 registrants. Nearly 400 were counseling psychology students—thus we both heard from and talked to our collective future in counseling psychology. I hope that all had a wonderful time—we certainly were deluged with requests to hold another conference in 2-4 years!

For those of you who were unable to join us, I would like to share with you the events and energy of the National Conference. The overarching theme of our conference was “Counseling Psychologists, Making a Difference.” We hoped to prompt counseling psychologists to rethink our roots in social advocacy. The 250+ programs at the conference spanned a variety of topics from “Counseling Psychology Training Models that Make a Difference” to “Cultural Competency as a Defining Feature for Counseling Psychology.” There never seemed to be a lull in the energy as we moved from one keynote to the next, each challenging the field of counseling psychology. Our kick-off presentation consisted of invigorating keynotes by Norine Johnson, President of APA (“Building a Healthy World: A Vision for Counseling Psychology”), and by the Provost of the University of Houston, Edward Sheridan, also a psychologist, who challenged us to use our skills to help shape a new world. This was followed on Friday morning by Rosie Phillips Bingham’s keynote on “The Power of Inclusion: A Counseling Psychologist’s Perspective.” Saturday morning offered an exciting moment that brought together Division 17 and CCPTP with the Executive Directorates of APA, in their Symposium “Putting it all Together: Expanding Opportunities in Counseling Psychology.” Cynthia Belar (Education), Richard McCarty (Science), Russ Newman (Practice), and Henry Tomes (Public Interest) discussed the initiatives of their directorates, with Norine Johnson and Chuck Claiborn (CCPTP) serving as discussants. At the end of the symposium, the four Division 17 Vice Presidents helped to facilitate discussions between conference participants and the Executive Directors.

Congressman Ted Strickland’s (D. Ohio) keynote address encouraged us to think what our roles as counseling psychologists are in political advocacy for social action. This encouragement was quite fitting since a key feature of the conference included social action groups which spanned the following areas: social justice and ethics, child abuse and neglect, community violence, domestic violence, economic boom and the poor/working class, homelessness and welfare, ethical issues in managed care, and racism. FROM THE PRESIDENT-ELECT

The National Multicultural Conference and Summit II, held January 25-26, 2001 in Santa Barbara, California, was co-hosted once again by Division 17 with Divisions 35, 44, and 45. It was a resounding success! The idea for hosting a second Summit arose from the high success, interest, and enthusiasm generated by the first NMCS, and all four hosting divisions have committed to continue hosting the NMCS every two years. Clearly, continuing education and training in the field of multicultural psychology is a high priority for the participants and members of the hosting divisions and organizations. One unique aspect of this conference is that it is member-driven; that is, the divisions and its representatives, with the co-sponsorship of various other divisions (6, 9, 12, 13, 16, 27, 29, 39, as well as Section 1 of 39, 43, 47, 48, 49, 51), and organizations within and without the American Psychological Association (American Express, National Institute of Health, Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research, National Institute of Mental Health, APA Office of Ethnic Minority Affairs, Association of Psychology Postdoctoral and Internship Centers, California School of Professional Psychology, Alliant University, Council of National Psychological Association for the Advancement of Ethnic Minority Interests, Council of University Directors of Clinical Psychology, Microtraining Associates, Inc., University of California, Santa Barbara, Phillips Graduate Institute/ California Family Study Center, University of Memphis, the Fielding Institute, Texas Psychological Association, New York Psychological Association, Association of Counseling Center Training Agencies, Association of University and College Counseling Center Directors) initiated and continue to provide impetus for this conference.

At the first NMCS, over 500 participants attended, and many were turned away due to lack of space. For the second

Division 17 Congratulates Melba Vasquez and Rosie Bingham for Distinguished Service Award

The Academy of Counseling Psychology, American Board of Professional Psychology, enthusiastically presented Distinguished Service Awards to Dr. Melba Vasquez and Dr. Rosie Bingham. Dr. Vasquez was cited for her contributions to the professional practice of Counseling Psychology, and Dr. Bingham was cited for her contributions to leadership in Counseling Psychology. Both awards were presented at the Annual Meeting of the Academy of Counseling Psychology held in Washington, D.C. during the 2000 APA Convention.

NMCS, we acquired a hotel which could accommodate 800 participants, and once again, we had to close down registration two months before the conference! Clearly, interest is high to sensitize the field of psychology to issues of human diversity. The changing demographics of race and ethnicity in society, coupled with the very slow increases (and in some cases decreases) in the pipeline of ethnic minority psychologists, drive the need for all psychologists to become more knowledgeable about diversity. In addition, there exists a concern that inequities regarding race/ethnicity, disability, sexual orientation, and gender are so often deeply ingrained in American society, that they operate in a way that we must be constantly vigilant about in our service delivery, research, training, and advocacy activities.

Based on feedback from the first conference, we extended the topics and content to focus not only on race and ethnicity, but to also spotlight issues of sexual orientation, disability, and gender. Thus, keynote presenters focused on those four areas over the two-day conference. The conference was once again opened and closed with a Native American ceremony conducted by Justin D. McDonald, Ph.D.

The content of the presentations was truly state-of-the art. The presenters validated and expanded our knowledge, and challenged our awareness of many of the key issues in each of the content areas. Without exception, the presenters were effective in their capacity to stimulate, touch, challenge, and entertain the participants.

Dr. Claude Steele, head of the Department of Psychology at Stanford, presented research on how stereotype threat significantly affects performance of people of color. In various settings and situations, performance of students was either enhanced or reduced depending on the presence of threat that the situation was one in which ethnic minorities are perceived as performing less well. Most importantly, Steele and his colleagues have developed interventions, based on enhancing a sense of competency, which transcended the negative effects of stereotype threat.

Dr. Jack Dovidio, former President of Division 9, Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues, presented powerful evidence and results of several studies that bias still exists in the selection of participants in the workplace, school admissions, and other settings. Especially when candidates were moderately qualified (as opposed to highly qualified or less qualified), selection bias in favor of the White candidate was clearly evident. The benefit of the doubt is granted to the privileged White candidate!

Division 17 Continuing Education (CE) and Regional Conferences Committee

The Division 17 Continuing Education (CE) and Regional Conferences Committee conducted a Division 17 needs assessment survey via this newsletter in Spring, 2000. Of the fifty-four respondents, twenty-two gave their primary employment setting as a university counseling center. Twelve were employed in private practice and eleven in university/academic settings. The survey asked participants to rate continuing education topics on a range from “not interested” to “most interested.”

The top ten topics (out of thirty-two) endorsed in descending rank order were: ethics, post-traumatic stress disorder, personality disorders, brief psychotherapy, psychopharmacology, mood disorders, crisis intervention, sexual orientation issues, supervision and training, and multicultural issues. In addition, the workshop types preferred in descending rank order were: regional workshops, APA Pre-convention Workshops, full day seminars, half-day seminars, and multi-day seminars.

The Division 17 Continuing Education and Regional Conferences Committee hopes the information from the division needs assessment survey will be helpful to Division members and groups who are considering sponsoring CE activities in the near future. Please note that Division 17 is approved by the American Psychological Association to offer continuing education credits. For more information about developing a CE program that meets APA criteria, contact Martha Dennis Christiansen, Chair, Division 17 Continuing Education (CE) and Regional Conferences Committee at mdchri@wm.edu.

School of Professional Psychology, sensitized us to the issues and challenges of disabled persons; she not only raised our sensitivities about the experience of various categories of disabled persons, but also provided methods and strategies that must be implemented to reduce bias, prejudice, and discrimination against these groups. Her powerful presentation and sense of humor facilitated audience ability to hear her challenging messages, similar to the messages of Steele and Dovidio.

Dr. Linda Gamets, Professor at University of California, Los Angeles, presented the most current issues in the theory, research, and practice related to sexual orientation. Her presentation, “Sexual Orientations in Perspective,” addressed a wide range of issues related to Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual concerns.

Dr. Pamela Reid, Professor of Psychology and Education at the University of Michigan, Research Scientist at the UM Institute for Research on Women and Gender, presented an overview of key issues related to concerns of women. She reminded us of the role that psychology has to play in ensuring the increased empowerment of women and safety from violence. Her model which articulated the experience of women in society was a powerful contribution to the perspective on gender, which included the importance of addressing class issues.

Dr. Michael D’Andrea, University of Hawaii, spoke of “Dealing with Gender: Beyond Intellectual Parochialism & Political Paralysis.” The tone and nature of his address was stimulating, challenging, and inspirational. His presentation style varied from the others in his use of oratory, music, and other techniques. Both the content of his message as well as the presentation style provided the opportunity for many to truly challenge their capacity for diversity; for others, it presented an opportunity to deconstruct the role of a White male who used this approach in a multicultural setting such as the Multicultural Summit.

Dr. Norine Johnson, APA President, provided a powerful luncheon address which spoke of the American Psychological Association’s Commitment to Diversity and Multiculturalism. Although APA has a way to go to incorporate a full multicultural agenda, there is much that has evolved over the last twenty or so years in increasing sensitivity to diversity within APA.

Several honors were presented at this conference. At the first NMCS, Senior Women of Color were honored for their contributions. At this conference, a special presentation was made to Honoring Senior Men of Color. While the entire conference was at times moving and poignant, the most touching event was to hear the stories of “Surviving Racism: Lessons We Have Learned,” from Arthur L. McDonald, Ph.D, Amado Padilla, Ph.D, K. Patrick Okura, M.A. (who was presented with an honorary doctorate by Dr. Lisa Porche-Burke, Chancellor of Phillips Graduate Institute), and Dr. Joseph L. White, Ph.D. Their very touching, funny, and inspirational stories were powerful. All of these survivors have made major contributions to the profession of psychology. Dr. Norine Johnson provided a presidential citation to Dr. Derald Wing Sue (to his surprise), one of the planners of the conference. Derald, highly deserving, has also made a variety of major contributions to the profession, including as original and continuing author of the Multicultural Competencies, which are currently being reviewed by the APA governance for consideration as Multicultural Guidelines.

All keynote presentations as well as the Senior Men of Color presentations were videotaped and are available through Microtraining Associates (Phone/Fax 888-505-5576; email: info@emicrotraining.com; website: www.emicrotraining.com. (A small percentage of the proceeds are shared with the four hosting divisions.)

Fourteen outstanding and interesting panels were presented by about 40 highly talented psychologists; in addition, Janis Sanchez Hucles, Ph.D., structured 10 groups which addressed “Difficult Dialogues” in the areas of gender, disabilities, sexual orientation, race/ethnicity, white privilege, and students and diversity. Various recommendations were made from those “difficult dialogues” and are in the process of being compiled. Almost 30 students presented posters, and additional workshops were conducted, including an NIMH Grant Writing workshop, an ABPP Certification Workshop, and an APA Accreditation Workshop. Christine Iijima Hall, Ph.D., Oliva M. Espin, Ph.D., and Joseph E. Trimble, Ph.D. provided powerful and stimulating “Intersections of Diversities.” They integrated themes and issues throughout the two days of the conference which they thought were important. Thirteen hours of Continuing Education Credit was offered to those who desired it.

The energy and increased awareness was carried into our Division 17 Executive Board meeting. Division 17, as an organization, and Counseling Psychology as a field have always been among the leaders in promoting diversity and multicultural awareness. I look forward to continuing this direction as part of the strong heritage of this Division. In particular, supporting the endorsement of the Guidelines for Multicultural Counseling Proficiency for Psychologists: Implications for Education and Training, Research and Clinical Practice (recently introduced at Council of Representatives to start the arduous process of review by the APA governance structure) will continue as a major effort. The final goal is endorsement by Council of Representatives, which will make the Guidelines part of APA policy as aspirational Guidelines. They can be reviewed on the Division 17 website, <http://www.div17.org>

Warm congratulations to Rosie Phillips Bingham, who served as planner/representative from Division 17 for the first and second NMCS. William Parham has agreed to serve as the representative from Division 17 for the third NMCS. I am in a unique position to have served as the representative from Division 35 for the planning of both NMCS, and to be in such an active role with this Division as well! Other planners included Steve James from Division 44, and Derald Wing Sue and Lisa Porche-Burke from Division 45.

From The Vice President of Professional Practice

Counseling Psychologists in professional practice were well represented at the recent National Multicultural Summit in Santa Barbara and at the National Counseling Psychology Conference in Houston. We are in practice in a wide variety of settings, including University and College Counseling Centers, independent practices, hospitals, organizational consulting groups, community mental health centers, and schools.

Vice President of Professional Practice, Mary O’Leary Wiley, represents Counseling Psychology as the Division 17 liaison to both the Board of Professional Affairs of APA and CAPP (the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Practice). Please contact Mary at Wiley510@aol.com if you have issues you would like to see these groups address. We are fortunate to have Jean Carter as a member of CAPP and Sandy Shullman as a member of BPA. These groups are significantly involved in advancing the practice agenda in APA, and we are pleased to have a solid Division 17 presence there.

Over the past several months, there has been some wonderful dialog on various listservs about the needs of college and university Counseling Center staff and how Division 17 can most effectively meet their needs. Mary has been collaborating with her Advisory Board, which is made up of Stewart Cooper (Counseling Center Director, Valparaiso State University), Sue Stock-Ward (Counseling Center staff, University of Akron), and Lynn Tracy (Chair, Section on Independent Practice), on developing plans for incorporating the needs of Counseling Centers more prominently in her work as Vice President of Professional Practice.

Rebecca MacNair-Semands, Chair of the Special Interest Group on Counseling Centers, will be working with SIG members to develop a Section related to Counseling Center work. Please contact Rebecca through the Division 17 website if you are willing to help in this important project.

Lynn Tracy, Chair of the Section on Independent Practice, is developing a list of potential projects for the Section. Please contact Lynn through the Division 17 website if you have ideas on how the Division can be of assistance to Counseling Psychologists in independent practice.

The revision of the APA Ethics Code is in its final review. If you have thoughts on this document that you believe should be addressed by the Division, please contact Mary O’Leary Wiley through the Division 17 website.

APA Council Representative Report

The Council of Representatives of the American Psychological Association met on February 22-25, 2001 in Washington, D.C. The Division 17 Council Representatives in attendance were Linda Forrest, Janet Helms, and Gerald Stone.

APA President Norine Johnson, Ph.D., described the initiatives to date related to her presidential theme of “Psychology: Building a Healthy World.” The initiatives are intended to inform the public and legislatures about psychology’s contributions to the promotion of healthy families, work places, and communities.

Chief Executive Officer, Ray Fowler, Ph.D., apprised Council of the legislative agenda that APA will be advocating in Congress. Members will be asked to communicate with their representatives with respect to the following: Medicare funding, parity for mental health professions, and patients' bill of rights.

Dr. Fowler also discussed issues related to membership retention and the structure of the APA convention in 2002. The increase in number of members in APA who are dues-exempt because of age is exceeding the number of new dues-paying members. Consequently, APA may soon find itself in financial straits if it cannot find ways to attract new members. Chair of the Ethnic Minority Caucus, Janet Helms, currently serves on the presidentially appointed "Task Force on Membership, Retention, and Recruitment" and welcomes your ideas for increasing membership.

The 2002 APA convention in Chicago will be held over a four-day period rather than the traditional six days. This means that there will be more inter-divisional programming and poster sessions. Although the changes to the format were necessitated by competing demands for space in Chicago, if members like the new format and attend the conference in larger numbers, then the modified format for the convention will probably be used in subsequent years. L. Michael Honaker is the APA central staff person who seems most knowledgeable about the new convention structure.

Charles McKay, Chief Financial Advisor explained the budget to Council. Council approved the proposed budget for 2001. It also approved to set aside funds (if available) from the 2000 budget for several projects. Mr. McKay's report indicated that APA's two buildings are now fully occupied and leased. The rent is non-dues income.

Division 17 Council Representatives hosted a strategic planning session for Council Representatives representing other constituencies, but are members of Division 17. Three Division 17 members, Carol Goodheart, Janet Helms, and Sandra Schulman, are running for positions on APA's Board of Directors. If you belong to multiple Divisions, please ask your last year's (2000) Council Representatives to vote for them.

The "Guidelines for Multicultural Counseling Proficiency for Psychologists," jointly sponsored by Divisions 17 and 45, were introduced as new business at this session. As mandated by APA rules, the Guidelines are now in the notification/review process required prior to the document's consideration by Council. Divisions and state/provincial psychological associations have been notified of the availability of the Guidelines and APA Boards and Committees will review them and provide input before they become an action item for Council. The March 2001 issue of the "APA Monitor" provides information about how members may obtain a copy of the document and submit comments about it.

Several motions requiring membership in APA for all members of site visiting panels, APA boards and committees, etc. were withdrawn because many of the committees involved (e.g., Committee on Accreditation) are independent associations and, consequently, are beyond the jurisdiction of Council.

The provisional draft of the Ethics Code Revision was published in the APA Monitor in February of 2001. It is also available on the APA web site. The Ethics Code Task Force is soliciting comments and will be addressing questions about it in San Francisco at the APA convention.

The proposal of APA's Ethics Committee to limit adjudication of alleged ethics violations to expellable behaviors was discussed extensively, although it was not an action item. Under the proposal, states would be given greater responsibility for adjudicating lesser offenses and APA's Ethics committee would expand its educational efforts. None of the Council representatives who spoke favored this change.

Council passed several resolutions. The most contentious was the "Resolution on Assisted Suicide." The resolution states that APA "neither endorses nor opposes assisted suicide at this time," but makes recommendations about psychological research and practice and policy implications related to the issue. A separate "Resolution on End-of-Life Issues and Care for Adults" was also passed. It makes recommendations for practice, research, and professional development for psychologists working with individuals facing end-of-life decisions.

Also, Council passed without dissent a "Resolution on Racial/Ethnic Profiling and Other Racial/Ethnic Disparities in Law and Security Enforcement Activities." The resolution advocates educational efforts, public policy, and psychological research intended to overcome racial profiling and other racial and ethnic disparities in law enforcement.

Council voted to add the word "health" to the first sentence of APA's mission statement (i.e., "... to advance psychology as a science and profession and as a means of promoting health and human behavior..."). The Psychological Association of Guam's request for APA affiliation was approved. Permanent Division status was approved for the "Division of Clinical Child Psychology (Division 53)" and the "Society of Pediatric Psychology (Division 54). Council accepted the report of the "Commission on Education and Training Leading to Licensure in Psychology." It will now be circulated for comment to appropriate APA governance groups and external psychology organizations.

RECOMENDED BY-LAW CHANGES

The Executive Board endorses the following By-laws amendments, which will be voted on at the Division 17 Business meeting, August 2001.

Article I, c: Add 4) to cooperate with the American Psychological Association and its Boards and Committees which are concerned with practice.

Rationale: Makes this Section consistent with the descriptions of education and training, science, and diversity and public interest.

Article II, 2:2: General Procedures

b. Each applicant for election as Associate, Member, Fellow or Professional Affiliate must complete the application forms ...

c. Favorable action, based on majority approval by the ~~Membership and Fellowship committees,~~ are reviewed by the Executive Board. ~~Favorable decisions concerning Members and Associates are reviewed by the Executive Board and then reported at the Annual Business Meeting. Favorable decisions concerning Fellows are reviewed by the Fellows of the Executive Board. See Article II, 4c and d for election procedures. Favorable decisions concerning Professional Affiliates are reviewed by the Executive Board.~~

d. Each applicant for election as Student Affiliate must complete the application form prepared by the Student Affiliate Group (SAG) and approved by the Executive Board. The SAG Membership Committee reviews and approves Student Affiliate applications, and forwards favorable decisions to the Executive Board.

e. ~~An applicant for Associate, Member, Professional Affiliatenot recommended for election by the appropriate committee (Membership or SAG Membership) is~~

~~notified by the appropriate committee chair. An applicant for Associate, Member or Professional Affiliate who is not endorsed by the Ex-president. An applicant for Fellow who is not endorsed by the Fellowship Committee or by the Fellows of the Executive Board is notified by the President and the committee chair.~~

f. Applicants for Associate, Member, Professional Affiliate, Student Affiliate, or Fellow status who are not recommended for election at any stage in the election process may appeal this decision by providing further documentation in support of their original applications. ~~Associate, Member, and Professional Affiliate applicants appeal through the Membership Committee. Student Affiliate applicants appeal through the SAG Membership Committee and Fellow applicants appeal through the Fellowship Committee. ... The appeal and supporting documentation will be forwarded by the appropriate Fellowship Committee chair to the President to be placed on the agenda of the next regularly scheduled Executive Board meeting. The Executive Board of the whole considers appeals from Associate, Member, Professional Affiliate and Student Affiliate applicants. The Fellows of the Executive Board, whose decision is final, consider the appeals from Fellow applicants.~~

5. Members - Standards

The requirement for affiliation with this Division as a Member are the same as those set forth in the APA Bylaws. In addition, applicants shall be currently involved in teaching of, research in, or practice in counseling psychology. ~~These functions may be performed in educational institutions, industrial or business enterprises, health and welfare agencies, consulting firms, foundations and institutes, or private practice.~~ Members shall be entitled to the rights and privileges of the Division without restriction except where there is an expressed provision to the contrary.

6. Members - Election

~~Applicants whose applications are completed and filed no later than three months prior to the Annual Business Meeting of the Division and whose election as Members is recommended by the Membership committee and who are approved by a majority vote of the Executive Board are presented to the membership at the Annual Business Meeting.~~

7. Associates - Standards

~~...be elected advanced to member status as prescribed in Article II, section 8 and the current practices of APA.~~

8. Associates - Election

The same procedure as for the selection of Members (Article II, section 6) will be followed.

10. Professional Affiliates - Election

Applications for Professional Affiliate status are submitted to the Membership Committee. ~~Those, whose election is recommended by the Membership Committee, are forwarded to the Executive Board. A majority vote of the Executive Board is necessary for approval.~~

12. Student Affiliates - Election

Applications for Student Affiliate status are submitted to the SAG Membership Committee. ~~Those, whose election is recommended by the SAG Membership Committee, are forwarded for information to the Executive Board.~~

Rationale: These provisions were written to reflect the process of election of members as qualified and appropriate (ie, an exclusionary perspective); currently all interested parties are welcome as members. The bylaws should reflect such a change. In addition, the process as it has developed has not included such an election process, except as a pro forma following of by-laws. Instead the by-laws should reflect both good policy and good procedures.

Membership category to be added, By-laws Article II:

14. International Affiliate

International affiliates shall be persons who maintain International Affiliate status with the APA; or demonstrated interest and involvement in activities closely related to those of Division 17, which may include practice, research, teaching and/or study in the field of Counseling Psychology. International Affiliates may not hold office, serve as voting members of Division 17 committees, or vote in regular or special elections; they will receive Division 17 publications and communications.

Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Awareness

The Section on Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Awareness (SLGBA) continues to provide members of Division 17 with a reminder of the importance of considering sexual orientation in all of our professional activities. As Chair of the Section, I hope to provide you with opportunities to reflect on how heterosexism and homophobia may be unwittingly informing our practices in the classroom, at professional meetings, or in clinical practice. In future columns, I will reflect on some specific ways that this may be occurring.

SLGBA has many ongoing activities. All members of Division 17 are invited to become involved in the efforts of the section. You do not have to be gay, lesbian, or bisexual to be active in our section; simply believe in the importance of recognizing sexual orientation as a focus of professional attention.

Some of the activities that the SLGBA is working on are as follows:

Mentoring. Last year, a mentoring program was initiated for lesbian/gay/bisexual students and new professionals. These students/new professionals desired to have the support and feedback of another member of our section who was further in his or her career. Several mentees were matched with members of our section who volunteered to be mentors. Overall feedback about this initial venture was positive. However, contact between mentors and mentees varied between regular email/phone contact to a brief interaction at the national convention. Although the mentoring program is still in its infancy, we hope to expand the program and clarify expectations of mentors and mentees. If anyone is interested in becoming connected to a mentor, they can contact Erinn Tozer, Member at Large (etozer@acusd.edu) or Michael Rankin, Student Liaison (phidias@prodigy.net). If you have been involved in this activity previously and felt that it “fell flat,” I hope that you will consider giving the program another try.

The SLGBA will be active at the upcoming convention in San Francisco. Plans are currently being finalized for SLGBA’s presentation. In addition, the section always conducts a business meeting and social hour for the membership. Please watch the Division 17 Convention schedule for further details as the convention draws closer.

For further information about SLGBA or its activities, please consult our web site (<http://www.csuohio.edu/div17lgb/>) that can also be accessed from the Division 17 website. Many thanks are extended to Thomas Palma, our webmaster, for the maintenance of this site. Please also feel free to contact me at the address below if you have questions or wish to become active in our section.

As our section coalesced and developed foci for action, we recognized the importance of collaborating with other groups and individuals within the Division; that our needs held much in common with members of other oppressed groups. We were delighted to be a part of the coalition building movement at the National Counseling Psychology Conference in Houston and we look forward to ongoing collaborations with other Sections and other Divisions within APA.

Advancement of Women

The Section for the Advancement of Women (SAW) has been very active since the last newsletter. We have revised our bylaws and sent them to the Division 17 Executive Board for approval. We are also in the process of constructing a web page. Of special note were our events at the Division 17 Houston Conference. We held a breakfast social hour attended by a small but mighty group of professionals and students. Kathy Hotelling gave an excellent and informative presentation on "A Feminist Perspective on Eating Disorders: A Treatment Team Approach." I was also joined by Gargi Roysircar-Sodowsky (Section for Ethnic and Racial Diversity) and John O'Brien (Section for Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Awareness) in a discussion of how we might work together as social-activist sections to build coalitions and support one another's and our shared agendas. At APA, we plan to continue this dialogue as well as to continue looking at eating disorders and body image as a major issue confronting women and girls.

Ethnic & Racial Diversity

In Fall 2000, faculty members held an e-mail discussion in the SERD Listserv (SERD-L@LISTSERV.UGA.EDU) on exercises that they have found effective in raising multicultural self-awareness in trainees. Independent of this exchange, but parallel in intent, was a faculty member's question to Division 17 President Nadya Fouad and Division 45 Past-President Derald Wing Sue about whether she could place her multicultural syllabus in some type of repository. In response to Nadya Fouad's query about such a possibility and to the e-mail discussion on multicultural exercises, the SERD Chair, Gargi Roysircar-Sodowsky, developed links for a multicultural syllabus bank and for a resource of multicultural exercises in the Multicultural Center web site, www.multiculturalcenter.org, of Antioch New England. All trainers of multicultural counseling and diversity topics are invited to place syllabi and descriptions of experiential activities in this web site. To do so, get in touch with: g\_roysircar-sodowsky@antiochne.edu. Bisexual Awareness, and the SERD Chair addressing their diverse understandings of such terms as marginalization and minority status led them to conclude that regardless of their respective interpretations, they were activists in Division 17. From there arose the topic of their joint panel discussion at the Houston Conference: Changing Faces of Counseling Psychology: Building Coalitions Among Division Activists. See below a report, More of the Pie, based on our value to raise consciousness about the disenfranchisement of people other than that of our own group and to unify the advocacy efforts of the three sections, SERD, SAW, and SLGBA, while at the same time maintaining our respective Section identities. At APA in San Francisco, we'll hold a reception and meeting for all like-minded individuals and groups to discuss and plan integrated advocacy efforts. Look for SERD, SAW, and SLGBA's call for such a meeting in the July Newsletter.

Collaboration occurred again at the Houston conference, when Kathleen Chwalisz, Chair of Counseling Health Psychology, and Sara Maltzman of the same Section invited the SERD chair to discuss psychosocial assessment and multicultural community service delivery in their symposium, Counseling Health Psychology: Charting A Course For this Century. Viva Section collaborations!

SECTIONS

More Pie Initiative

At the Division 17 Houston 2001 Conference, the Sections for LGB Awareness (SLGBA), Ethnic and Racial Diversity (SERD), Advancement of Women (SAW) met together to discuss coalition building. These are some of the ideas that arose in this discussion:

- * As sections that address social justice issues, we clearly have some common goals, and our voices will be more powerful if we join together.
- * Some individuals have memberships in multiple sections, which make it difficult to participate fully since section events are sometimes scheduled at the same time.
- * Although members of all three sections are committed to social justice issues, we may not be aware of the issues addressed by the sections to which we don't belong, and we may all lack some awareness of issues that are not covered by any section (e.g., social class, disabilities).
- * Rather than fighting over pieces of the pie, we need MORE PIE!

Let's Overcome Challenges:

1. tension between/within groups
2. power sharing and overall power limitations
3. recognizing and acknowledging oppression
4. language- concern re: how to address sensitive issues
5. communication (frequency and clarity)
6. logistical/structural problems at APA Convention

Why the More Pie Initiative?

The More Pie Initiative is a means of creating connections between the members of the three social justice sections of Division 17 (SAW, SERD, SLGBA) in order to accomplish the following:

- * Create a more powerful voice within Division 17.
- * Connect with other people within Division 17 who are interested in social justice.
- * Raise our own awareness about social justice issues.

What exactly are you asking me, a Division 17 member, to do?

Here's a suggestion...

People interested in being part of the More Pie Initiative could be matched with a pen pal in another section. These dyads could be provided with starter questions to get a dialogue going (via email or phone, or in person), but there would be no restrictions on where the dialogue goes from there.

We are planning a More Pie reception at APA at which potential pen pals could connect with each other and with other members of the three sections. A conversation hour following the reception might provide an opportunity for More Pie participants to report back on their dialogues and discuss ideas for continued coalition building among the three sections.

PREVENTION

The Prevention Section was very active at the Houston 2001 Counseling Psychology Conference, featuring applications, research, and training related to prevention in counseling psychology. The Section's programs supported the conference's theme "Counseling Psychologists, Making a Difference," and much enthusiasm was shown for the prevention work of counseling psychologists. The Section offered a Preconvention Workshop with John Romano providing historical context and current themes in prevention for counseling psychology. Maureen Kenny and student colleagues, Jennifer Grossman and Elizabeth Warter, from Boston College described their primary prevention initiatives in Boston area schools. Peggy Kaczmarek, Eve Adams, and Mike Waldo discussed their projects that train preventionists at New Mexico State University. The University of Oregon's ecological training model and its community/school applications were presented by Ben McWhirter and graduate students Krista Gragg, Diane Suzuki Hayashino, Danielle Torres, and Noah Kaufman. The Section also sponsored two symposia in Houston. One panel featured Robert Conyne, Kathleen Boggs, Rod Goodyear, and Meghan Davidson who described their perspectives on prevention as they relate to counseling psychology's history and practices, activities on college campuses, research programs, and graduate student training. The second symposium featured Mike Waldo and Le'Roy Reese who presented prevention funding opportunities for counseling psychologists, especially funds available through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and NIMH. The Section is developing several initiatives, including linkages with other. Division 17 sections and APA's Public Interest Directorate. The Section will sponsor a symposium at APA 2001 and hold a business meeting. Work has begun on a preconvention workshop for APA 2002. A major goal of the Section is to promote linkages and collaborations between counseling psychologists and other psychological specialties and disciplines engaged in the science and practice of prevention. A spring newsletter is planned. Visit our web site through the Division 17 web page. We welcome new members to the Section. Send an email to John Romano (roman001@umn.edu) if you wish to be added to our mailing list.

Independent Practice

Greetings from the Section on Independent Practice! We recently published our winter newsletter, and are currently in the midst of an active membership drive. Our goal, as always, is to connect more counseling psychologists in independent practice to each other, and to the greater Counseling Psychology community. We welcome ideas from current and new members on topics for the newsletters, projects, etc. We are compiling an email membership list for a listserv to send monthly email updates on issues relevant to members in the independent practice community.

We are also recruiting for leadership positions available within the Section. If you have a few hours per month, and would like to get connected with the Independent Practice Counseling Psychology Community, we'd love to have you.

To join the section, volunteer for a leadership position, or just share your ideas, please contact the Section Chair, Lynn Tracy at DrLynnTracy@aol.com or the Communications Officer, Julianne Lark at jslark@ameritech.net. Note: Membership in the Section is still free!

Appointment of JCP
 Associate Editor

Jo-Ida C. Hansen, Ph.D., Editor of the Journal of Counseling Psychology, recently appointed Beth E. Haverkamp, Ph.D., as an Associate Editor of the journal. Dr. Haverkamp, whose term began January 1, 2001, joins Associate Editors Elizabeth M. Altmaier, Ph.D., and Terence J.G. Tracey, Ph.D.

Dr. Haverkamp is an associate professor and the Deputy Head of Educational and Counseling Psychology at the University of British Columbia. She has a strong generalist background in substantive areas of counseling psychology research with particular expertise in assessment, ethics, marriage and family, counseling process and research methods. She is a member of APA's Division 17 (Counseling), Division 35 (Women), and Division 43 (Family).

The Journal of Counseling Psychology publishes research manuscripts, brief reports, integrative reviews of the literature in counseling psychology, and research methods articles that will inform those who study questions relevant to counseling psychology and those who practice counseling psychology. Division 17 members are encouraged to contact Dr. Hansen with suggestions for topics for integrative reviews or research methods articles.

Hansen has appointed 60 counseling psychologists from a range of specialties and work settings to serve on the JCP Editorial Board. In addition, over 115 individuals have agreed to serve as Ad Hoc Reviewers. Other individuals interested in serving as Ad Hoc Reviewers are encouraged to contact Dr. Hansen at jchjcp@umn.tc.edu or call the editorial office at 612-625-1817.

Manuscripts may be submitted for publication consideration to Dr. Hansen c/o The Journal of Counseling Psychology, 75 East River Road, Department of Psychology, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455.

DIV. 17 HOSPITALITY SUITE VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITY FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS!

We need your help! Each year during the APA convention, Division 17 hosts a hospitality suite where we hold business meetings, social events, and informal discussions. Student volunteers are needed to staff the Hospitality Suite in San Francisco for one 3-hour shift each. An orientation meeting for volunteers will be held on Friday morning, August 24 at 9 a.m. If you are interested in volunteering or would like more information, please send your name, email address, U.S. mail address, phone number, and hours that you would be available to host the suite to: Julia Phillips at julia7@uakron.edu. Shifts will be assigned on a first come, first served basis. Please respond by May 4. Thanks in advance!

President

Louise Douce

BIOGRAPHY

Louise Douce is currently the Director of the Counseling and Consultation Service at the Ohio State University. She holds an Adjunct academic appointment in Counseling Psychology and maintains a small private practice in the community. Louise has served the profession primarily in the areas of education and training of professional psychologists; the definition, vision, and promotion of Counseling Psychology; and expanding our understanding and teaching of multiculturalism across the full range of human diversity. She has served as Vice President of the Division for Education and Training; liaison to the Board of Educational Affairs; Board member, Vice Chair, and Treasurer of APPIC; Board member, Secretary, and President of ACCTA; liaison to CCPTP, and has served on the Division 17 Committee on Women; Awards and Recognition Committee; Fellowship Committee; Task Force on Proficiencies and Specialties in Counseling Psychology, the Task Force for Multicultural Competencies; and the Special Interest Group on Training and Supervision. Louise has also served as a delegate to the APPIC Conferences on Predocctoral Internships; Postdoctoral Training; the joint conference on Supply and Demand; and the Joint Council for Professional Education in Psychology, (JCPEP). Currently she chairs the Follow-Up Committee of the 2001 Houston Conference held in March. She has been a long standing member of the Section for the Advancement of Women and a founding member of the Section on Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Awareness. She is a member of Divisions 35, 44, and 45 as well as 17 and is a Fellow of Division 17. She completed her graduate work at the University of Minnesota in 1977 and is licensed as a Psychologist in the State of Ohio.

STATEMENT

Counseling Psychology stands at the forefront of Professional Psychology and has the possibility of becoming the leading edge in applying what we know about human behavior to making positive differences in people’s lives, their relationships, and their communities. Our philosophy and perspectives have come to the mainstream — or the mainstream has come to us. Yet, this is a crucial time for us, for our students, and for the profession as a whole. The roles and functions of the doctoral psychologist must evolve. We must expand our roles as scientists, practitioners, educators, and social advocates as we take our place at the tables for solving social problems, such as the prevention of violence, school to work preparation, delivery of excellent health care in the broadest definition, and creating a healthy climate for communication and cooperation in the multicultural communities of the global village we are becoming. We provide unique training as human behavior specialists, skilled in prevention and building on strengths to simultaneously provide and study health care delivery; analyze and improve systems; recognize, study, and improve the human environment interface; and be sensitive and effective in transcultural communication. Our traditions are steeped in science, practice, and advocacy. Counseling Psychology, because of the broad base of our training programs, produces students well-suited to the current challenges. As President of the Division, I will continue to promote Counseling Psychology both inside and outside of APA, create a broader base of action that will draw more Counseling Psychologists back to our division, and implement the vision, great ideas, and social action agenda from the 2001 Houston conference.

Bob Mc Pherson

STATEMENT

As a self-supporting, first generation college graduate still carrying some 1960’s idealism and over-estimation of my skills as counselor, I took my first job overseeing a peer-counseling program at Ector High in Odessa, Texas. My students were low-income, minority kids living on the “south side of the tracks.” I learned much about racism, high school football, small town life, and the power of local and federal politics. My influence on students was small compared to their impact on my life. I also learned “the simple virtue that an idea will not always carry the day.” Indeed, good counseling skills are necessary, but insufficient characteristics for helping those we seek to serve. Effective advancement of psychological practice and science also requires passionate, but strategic political advocacy. I have carried this lesson with me on other stops along my career path, including: Coordinator, University of Houston Learning Support Services; Founding Faculty, Houston Psychotherapy Institute; Director of Training, Counseling Psychology, University of Houston-President; Texas Psychological Association-Chair; Council of Counseling Psychology Training Programs; Co-chair, 2001 National Counseling Psychology Conference*; Co-founder, Psychological Software Solutions*; Chairperson, Educational Psychology, University of Houston*.

* Current

With the opportunity to serve Division 17, I would facilitate strategy development for promoting Counseling Psychology as the premier scientist-practitioner mental health profession. First, we must address internal operations of our organization and do the following:

- Increase tangible membership benefits for academics & practitioners
- Develop alternative revenue streams through new partnerships & sponsorships
- Increase membership via innovative & aggressive recruitment
- Expand recognition of member achievements, including increasing numbers of Fellows honored & encouraging more ABPP awardees.

Second, our external advocacy efforts require strategic political & public relations coordination designed to:

- Facilitate placement of counseling psychologists in key APA leadership positions, including the APA presidency
- Enhance creative use of print and internet communication forums, including transforming The Counseling Psychologist into a public relations & membership marketing tool, while maintaining its exceptional scholarship
- Ensure all psychologists have multicultural & career counseling competencies in order to practice.

It is an unexpected, but welcomed opportunity to be included among a very impressive slate of candidates. Your consideration of my nomination is greatly appreciated.

Bruce Wampold

STATEMENT

Any student of counseling psychology quickly learns that the field has struggled with its identity since its inception. This is healthy—we are not overly constricted by orthodoxy and have the opportunity to adapt to the changing landscape of health delivery systems. However, the field has to be ever vigilant not to emulate other fields. We need to be masters of our destiny.

What is our destiny? On the one hand, when we affiliated with the American Psychological Association, we affirmed our commitment to the field of psychology and the scientific method. On the other hand, we have, since our origins, been committed to assisting people grow, develop, and actualize and to furthering social justice. Our dual missions have created some inconsistencies—for example, we envy our clinical psychology colleagues who develop empirically supported treatments and compete successfully in practice and research market places, while we chafe at the emphasis on manualized, constricted, and restricted treatments. We want to be respected in the conglomeration that is the mental health service delivery system, yet we yearn to remain humanists.

My research and writings in the past few years have convinced me that our humanistic approach to mental health services is not only healthy, it is scientifically justified. A thorough review of the research on psychotherapy validates our training models, our perspectives, our emphasis on multicultural counseling, and our respect for the human spirit. As President of Division 17, I will be dedicated to furthering the notion that science and empirical research supports the field’s most basic instincts and justifies our distinctive approach to helping people. To sustain ourselves, we must put science at the service of practice. My presidential theme would be, “Preserving respect for the diverse roles of counseling psychologists.”

Vice President for Education and Training

Nancy Murdock

Biography

Nancy L. Murdock is an Associate Professor in the Division of Counseling, Educational Psychology and Exercise Science at the University of Missouri-Kansas City (UMKC). She serves as Director of Training for the Counseling Psychology program at UMKC and is currently the faculty advisor for the National Division 17 Student Affiliate Group.

Nancy served as Division 17 Program Co-Chair for the 2001 American Psychological Association conference.

NOMINEES

She has been continuously involved in Division 17 over her career, serving as Chair of the Division 17 New Professionals Committee and on various other Division committees. Nancy was co-chair of the Joint Writing Commission (of Division 17 and CCPTP) for the Model Training Program in Counseling Psychology and is an accreditation site visitor for the American Psychological Association. From 1996-1999, Nancy was a member of the Executive board of the Council of Counseling Psychology Training Programs (CCPTP) and in 1997-1998 served as chair. In addition to her academic duties, Nancy also serves as a contract psychologist for Catholic Charities of Kansas City, and as a psychological consultant to the Kansas City Ballet.

Statement

It is clear that Counseling Psychology is currently facing some major issues. If it is not shrinking, the current marketplace for psychological services is surely shifting, creating the need for Counseling Psychology to address several core questions: (a) identity, (b) the nature and content of education and training, and (c) attention to issues of diversity both within our ranks and in our current and future clientele.

Over my years of service to Division 17 and CCPTP, I have become increasingly appreciative of Counseling Psychology's clear sense of identity. I believe that our focus on strengths and assets and our attention to indirect and nontraditional interventions is the key to educating and training the Counseling Psychologists of the future. Further, continuing Counseling Psychology's long-honored commitment to individual and cultural diversity will enable our graduates to better serve our rapidly changing clientele. As we begin to move out of our traditional counseling roles into wider, more diverse settings than we traditionally have occupied, we must as a profession attend to these issues to ensure that our education and training programs meet these demands.

I would be honored to serve as Vice President for Education and Training of Division 17. Should I be elected, my goals for the coming three years would be as follows:

1. Professional flexibility. Support the necessary initiatives to transform education and training in Counseling Psychology to help our graduates survive in a fluid professional environment. An important part of this goal is attention to the unique identity of Counseling Psychology with emphasis on the appreciation and promotion of individual and cultural diversity which has been characteristic of our specialty.
2. Input from the "real world." Create and maintain channels of communication with the large numbers of counseling psychologists in the professional practice community with particular attention to input regarding needed modifications in education and training to meet the demands of the professional world.
3. Building a cohesive front. Continue to promote and maintain the productive intra- and inter-organizational bridges already established by my predecessors through contacts with practice groups, CCPTP, APA's Board of Educational Affairs, APPIC, and ACCTA, and others.

Jeff Prince

Biography

Jeff Prince is Director of Student Counseling at the University of California, Berkeley. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1984. He has held positions as staff psychologist, clinical director, training director and part-time faculty member at a number of universities, including the University of Maryland, Catholic University of America, and San Francisco State University. He also has provided organizational training in the area of career development and assessment. As a research-practitioner, Jeff has authored two books, and numerous book chapters and journal articles focused on assessment and counseling. He is also the author of the college edition of the Strong Interest Inventory and co-author of a highly praised internet-based career intervention site (Careerhub.org).

Jeff has contributed to Division 17 by taking on a variety of roles: he is current chair of the Division 17 Awards and Recognition Committee; he has served as a member of the Division's Advisory Council for Diversity and Public Interest; he chaired the Special Task Group for Public Interest that led to the development of the Prevention Section; he served for four years as a liaison between Division 17 and APA's Committee on Lesbian and Gay Concerns, and was one of the founding members of the Section for Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Awareness. He also served on the Division's Hospitality Suite Committee and is member of the Society for Vocational Psychology.

Statement

I am honored to be nominated for this leadership position, and to be included among such accomplished colleagues for this slate. The mission of the Vice President for Education and Training is to encourage and promote excellence in the education and training of counseling psychologists and to promote the integration of science and practice in their preparation. As a counseling psychologist who has spent over twenty years supervising, teaching, and training graduate students, this mission is close to my heart. It also has played an integral role in directing my professional activities and goals. The future of our profession depends on our ability to provide up-and-coming graduates not only with the tools but also with the inspiration to become excellent scientist-practitioners of counseling psychology. This includes maintaining high standards in domains valued by our profession during a period when economic and political pressures in both education and health care delivery threaten our identity. In particular, the dismantling of affirmative action in higher education threatens the diversity within both our academic training programs and counseling training sites. Similarly, our traditional training areas of vocational psychology and college counseling are threatened from managed care and other economic pressures. I believe it is important for our Division to address these issues both internally and by partnering with others across APA.

I believe these goals can be accomplished only through close collaboration among all members of the Executive Committee of the Division. I would work hard to coordinate such efforts and to make sure these values are voiced. Thank you for your consideration.

Emil Rodolfa

Biography

Emil Rodolfa received his Ph.D. in 1981 from Texas A&M University. He is the Associate Director of the University of California, Davis Counseling Center and Director of Training of the Counseling Center’s APA- Accredited Pre-doctoral Internship Program. Emil has been a Director of Internship Training for approximately 17 years. Emil has published numerous manuscripts and presented many papers on training and practice as part of the Division 17 APA Convention program. He is currently an Associate Editor for Professional Psychology: Research and Practice and primarily reviews manuscripts on education and training.

Between 1996 and 1998, he was President of the Association of Counseling Center Training Agencies (ACCTA), a national association of 130 Counseling Center Internship Programs. During this time, he chaired the Council of Chairs of Training Councils (CCTC), an association developed to provide a framework for dialogue between the major national doctoral psychology training organizations, including APPIC, CUDCP, CCPTP, NCSPP, AMSP, CDSPP, CPDCRA, ADPTC, and CHPTP. One of his major accomplishments was to help CCTC become an increasingly unified voice for education and training in psychology.

Emil is the current Vice-Chair of the APPIC Board of Directors. He chairs the APPIC Research Committee and is the APPIC liaison to the APA Board of Educational Affairs. For the last three years, Emil has represented APPIC at the Trilateral Forum, where psychologists from the United States, Canada and Mexico discuss issues of training, mobility, credentialing, ethics, and professional practice. Emil presented an overview of United States internship training at the International Credentialing and Licensure Conference in Oslo, Norway.

Yes, it is a pleasure to serve!

Emil is vice-president of the State of California Board of Psychology (BOP), which regulates the professional practice of approximately 16,000 California psychologists. As a member of the BOP, Emil has been active in providing direction in the regulation of the profession in California. He chairs the Examination Committee, the Continuing Education Committee, and the Supervision Regulation Committee. The BOP most recently met in Fresno, C, and, yes, it is still a pleasure to serve. As a member of the BOP, he has attempted to enhance the connection between training programs and the licensure board.

Statement

I am honored to be nominated for Vice President for Education and Training. I also have very mixed feelings about running for this position at this point in time. To be a worthy recipient of your votes, I must pledge that I would give my all to work toward enhancing the education and training of counseling psychologists. I am currently working hard as a member of the APPIC Board and the California Board of Psychology to improve the training and practice of psychology. My work on these Boards allows me broad input into relevant issues being discussed by members of our field. As a result, I hope and believe I bring a counseling psychology perspective to these discussions and debates.

I continue to be impressed by the manner in which Division 17 conducts its business and how diligently the Executive Board members work to protect and enhance the interests of Counseling Psychology and Counseling Psychologists. I believe in hard work and I work hard to improve the education and training of counseling psychology students.

As you know, psychology is a relatively small field, and two of my friends, Dr. Nancy Murdock and Dr. Jeff Price, are also nominated for this position. I know that either of them would do a superb job as the Vice President for Education and Training. I am happy they are running because it makes it very easy for me to strongly encourage you to vote for one of them. It is with heartfelt appreciation that I thank those of you who nominated me for this position, but as I write this statement, it is clear to me that I can best serve the interests of counseling psychology by fulfilling with passion and vigor the responsibilities I currently have. I hope you will strongly consider voting for me if I am lucky enough to be nominated in the future.

Council Representative

Rosie Bingham

Statement

It is with pleasure that I accept a nomination to run for a slot as APA Council Representative for Division 17. It has been my pleasure to have served at two different times on the Division 17 Executive Board, once as Vice President for Diversity and Public Interest and once as President. During those times I watched the Division evolve into a very proactive unit with interest in the diversity of the counseling psychology membership and profession. We worked hard to define and implement the mission as espoused by the membership. I would work on Council to further the missions and goals of our Division. That means work hard in education, training, practice, science, diversity, and public interest. While the position is voluntary, it is very important that the people in the position have a strong work ethic. You can trust me to have that kind of ethic.

I am currently on the APA Policy and Planning Board and have previously served on the Ethics Committee and chaired the task force on the use of the term “clinical” in special and proficiency titles. And I have recently had the honor and privilege of being on the organizing committee for the National Multicultural Conference and Summit II. My current paid employment is as Assistant Vice President for Student Development at the University of Memphis, where I am responsible for the counseling center, student health, disability services, career services and athletic academic services. Along with various community activities and my family life, these positions have helped me to develop a broad developmental perspective about human behavior. It may be useful to know that I earned a diplomate in Counseling Psychology in 1993. I believe that I can draw upon all of these activities and experiences to help me to be an effective Council Representative. And finally, the Board has such great leadership and the division has such stimulating members that I think I just might like doing this job.

Chris Brown

Biography

Chris Brown is an Associate Professor in the Division of Counseling, Educational Psychology and Exercise Science at the University of Missouri-Kansas City. In Division 17, she has served as a member of the Program Committee, Hospitality Suite Committee, and is currently Co-Chair of the Program Committee for the 2001 APA Convention in San Francisco. Chris is professionally involved in both the science and practice of counseling psychology, which is reflected in her roles as researcher, educator, practitioner, and consultant. More specifically, Chris provides counseling services for New Directions Employee Assistance Program, and serves as a consulting psychologist for Midwest Career Development Service, as well as a program evaluator for an urban alternative middle school. In addition, Chris serves on the Board of Directors for Youth Net, an organization committed to facilitating change within the youth development system in order to benefit youth and their families. In each of these roles, her commitment to cultural and individual diversity, and to improvement of the welfare of individuals and communities is well evidenced. Her primary areas of teaching, service, and publication include career development, assessment, ethics, and program evaluation.

Statement

I am honored to be nominated for the Division 17 Representative to the APA Council. As a strong voice to the critical issues and concerns of Division 17, Council Representatives assume a very important seat in the Division’s structure and in the affairs of APA governance. I am committed to continuing the tradition of this strong voice and to promoting the interests and strengths of Counseling Psychology to professional psychology. If elected to Council, I will work diligently and collaboratively with other constituencies of governance to represent the views of Division 17 membership and to keep Counseling Psychology at the forefront of policies and critical developments in the psychology profession. I welcome the opportunity to continue my committee involvement in APA and would be most honored to serve Division 17 as a representative to APA Council.

Bill Parham

Biography

WILLIAM D. PARHAM, PH.D., ABPP is the Associate Director of Student Psychological Services at UCLA where he also serves as the chief psychologist for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics. Dr. Parham maintains a part-time psychological and consultation practice wherein he provides sport/performance consultation services to athletes, coaches, trainers, and administrators at the collegiate, amateur, professional, and Olympic levels. He has worked with performance artists in drama, theater, and music.

Dr. Parham consults with Children’s Hospital of Orange County (CHOC) in the Department of Health Psychology where he participates as a member of the diabetes treatment team. In that capacity, Dr. Parham started and continues to offer a support group specifically targeting parents of newly diagnosed type I diabetic children.

A graduate of the Counseling Psychology program at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, Dr. Parham is a licensed psychologist who was also awarded the Diplomate in Counseling Psychology from the American Board of Professional Psychology in 1992. His activity within APA is long standing. Dr. Parham is currently a member of the Committee on Ethnic Minority Affairs (CEMA) and serves as a site visitor for the Office of Accreditation. Within Division 17, he is a past member of the editorial board of The Counseling Psychologist and was elected recently to the Program Committee, the APA Award Focus Subcommittee, and is the Division 17 representative to the committee coordinating the National Multicultural Conference & Summit III. Dr. Parham has been active in Divisions 45 (former Program Chair) and 47 (former Member at Large).

Within the American Board of Professional Psychology (ABPP), Dr.

Parham is the Immediate Past-President of the Counseling Psychology Board and is a Fellow in the Academy of Counseling Psychology. Dr. Parham serves on a Diversity Task Force whose mission is to evaluate the ABPP organization with respect to its diversity sensitive practices. Other past and current professional activities include: Member, Examination Committee, The Association of State and Provincial Psychology Boards (ASPPB); Oral Examination Commissioner & Case Reviewer, Board of Psychology, State of California; Board Member, Pediatric Adolescent Diabetes Research & Education Foundation (PADRE), affiliated with the Children’s Hospital of Orange County; and Member, and Sport Psychology Register of the United States Olympic Committee (USOC). Finally, Dr. Parham’s scholarship interests lie in the areas of multiculturalism and sport and health psychology.

STATEMENT

Entrusting me with the responsibility to represent Division 17 on the Council of the APA feels heartwarming. Division 17 has been blessed with a current leadership team that reflects strength and a resolve to move in a forward and progressive direction and I am humbled by your consideration of me as a member of this proactive entourage. I graciously accept the invitation to be among the slate of candidates on which the membership will vote. If your wish is to have me serve as your representative to Council, I will honor my commitment to represent Division 17 responsibly.

The potpourri of interests and passions reflected in Division 17 attests to the excitement and enthusiasm our group now has for advancing psychology in a manner that is right and correct. Co-authoring the Guidelines for Multicultural Counseling Proficiency: Implications for Education and Training, Research, and Clinical Practice is a case in point. The co-authored document speaks to the leadership role Division 17 (in partnership with Division 45) is taking in attempting to realign the mindset of our constituency and of the APA organization to fit the realities of a world that has become increasingly varied multiculturally. The co-sponsorship (along with other Divisions, state associations, APA committees, NIH, NIMH, and corporate companies) of the National Multicultural Conference and Summit and joining with the Council of Counseling Psychology Training Programs in planning the National Conference in Houston, Texas, are additional examples of Division 17’s desire to advance the responsible practice of psychology. Participating in the Minority Pipeline Project, addressing concerns and issues related to the ever changing health and mental health care system, and promoting social and political advocacy programs represents other important agenda foci around which Division 17 has rallied.

Advancing these and other important agenda items requires Division 17 to select a member who is knowledgeable about Division affairs and who is able to smartly promote divisional interests while maintaining a working alliance with the governance of the APA. I am knowledgeable about Division 17 affairs, our mission and vision. My long standing involvement with various other divisions and committees-within APA has provided me with a better than working knowledge of the structure and function of the larger political body. My participation in the governance structure and task force opportunities of the ABPP attests to my comfort in assuming leadership responsibility and in spearheading consequential agenda proactively.

I am able to serve and wanting to serve as a Division 17 representative to the council of APA. Your consideration of me as your representative is appreciated and gratifying. Selecting me to represent our division brings with it a promise to work in partnership with our leadership to actively promote constituent interests. Your vote of confidence in me also guarantees effectual and operative collaboration with the council of APA.

NOMINEES

Treasurer

Brian Glaser

Statement

As a researcher, practitioner, and Director of Training of a Counseling Psychology doctoral program, I attempt to stay abreast of current and emerging issues facing our profession. Rapid changes are happening, and we must be at the table to have an impact. Critical areas include:

- Emerging training and education issues
- Policy formation within and outside the profession that promotes the principles of counseling psychology
- Health care delivery

In order to maximize our impact, we must have the fiscal wisdom to strategically allocate our resources. I am committed to our profession and our division. I have personally and professionally benefited from the hard work of years of Division 17 leadership. My motivation for seeking this office is to give something back to the profession.

Glenn Good

Biography

Glenn Good received his Ph.D. from Ohio State University in 1987. He is currently an Associate Professor and Director of the Counseling Psychology Program at the University of Missouri-Columbia, and maintains a private practice. He has authored more than 50 articles, chapters, and books, and provided more than 100 conference presentations. He is a Fellow of both the Division of Counseling Psychology and the Society for the Psychological Study of Men and Masculinity. He is the recipient of the Kathryn Hopwood Award for outstanding contributions to counseling psychology, the Annit Coeptis award from ACPA, and the Researcher of the Year award from SPSMM. He has held leadership positions in APA, ACPA, NOMAS, and the Missouri psychology licensing board. He currently serves on the editorial board of the Journal of Counseling Psychology, and as a representative on the APA Council of Representatives. Last, but farthest from least, he is the father of two delightful daughters — Allison and Jennifer.

Statement

Each year, we choose whether or not to spend our hard-earned income by joining or rejoining Division 17. Unfortunately, many counseling psychologists decide not to join the division. I believe that Division 17 members deserve to get absolutely the most benefits and services possible by having their money spent as wisely, planfully, and cost-consciously as possible. I have a history of doing just that. Specifically, while serving APA Division 51, Jim Campbell (the Treasurer) created the “Thrifty Nickel Award” to recognize my “outstanding efforts at providing fiscally frugal service to the division.” If you vote for me Treasurer, I will do my best to reduce costs and maximize outcomes — with the aim that you receive the very best benefits possible.

Roberta Nutt

Statement

I am pleased and honored to be nominated to run for Treasurer in Division 17. I have been involved with the division in a variety of ways for more than 25 years, and I welcome a new opportunity to serve the division and Counseling Psychology. My earliest involvement with the division was through the then Committee on Women—I have been part of the network since the late 1970s and chaired the Committee in 1983-84. The Committee gave me its annual award in 1991 for my work on co-authoring The Division 17 Principles Concerning the Counseling/Psychotherapy of Women: Rationale and Implementation. I also served on the Special Task Force that developed the Counseling Psychology Specialty Petition for CRSPPP. I currently chair the Committee for Nominations to APA Boards and Committees and co-chair the Divisions 17 and 35 Interdivisional Task Force to Develop Guidelines for Counseling/Psychotherapy with Women. While, as I said in my Fellows address in 1997, Division 17 has always been my home base, I have also been very active and held office in several other divisions; particularly 35, 43, and 51. I served on the Texas State Board of Examiners of Psychologists from 1992-98 and chaired the board for four years. I still serve on the Education and Training for Credentialing Committee of the Association of State and Provincial Psychology Boards and the Oversight Committee for the Scrivner Fund for the American Psychological Foundation. I spent three years on the CCPTP Executive Board (1992-95) and the Board of Governors of the College of Professional Psychology (1998-2000). I sit on the Editorial Boards of the Journal of Family Psychology and Psychology of Men and Masculinity and am an APA accreditation site visitor. This network of connections has enabled me to acquaint other psychologists with the role and expertise of Counseling Psychology and monitor our interests. It also helped me organize a group of public interest-oriented divisions to share and strengthen our nominations voices this year. At home, I direct and founded an APA-accredited counseling psychology doctoral program at Texas Woman’s University that emphasizes within it family psychology and women’s/gender issues. I also maintain a part-time private practice in Dallas. I appreciate the division’s trust in nominating me and will work hard to serve the division if elected.

From the President

groups sought to examine the broader political, economic, cultural, and historical circumstances of a given set of issues in order to situate counseling psychology concerns in their respective natural contexts. The charges of the social action groups included: development of a new program, formulation of a new research agenda, groundwork for a policy paper, construction of a political action initiative, the designing of a new training program or curriculum, and establishment of a task force to examine a set issues in more depth. We finished Saturday night with one of my own favorite activities-a dance! We had a surprise appearance by the Texas Blues Brothers, and the ballroom was transformed by the amazing talents of the University of Houston students.

The closing of the conference was somewhat dampened by the weather patterns of the US, causing many of the registrants to depart sooner than expected. Nevertheless, a video collage provided an excellent reflection of our work and excitement throughout the conference. Stay tuned: we will play portions of the video at the Division 17 business meeting in San Francisco. In the town hall meeting we were also able to give our opinions in such areas as pharmacological training, and to identify plans to continue what we started at the Houston conference when we all went home.

Without the skills, efforts, spirits, and hearts of our Committee Co-Chairs (listed below), our discussions and plans could not have been realized. Let me first begin by giving heartfelt thanks to my conference co-chair, Bob McPherson, whose incredible organizational skills and vision made this conference happen, and to David White, the conference planner, who helped to make the conference run smoothly. David is also the Executive Director of the Texas Psychological Association. We asked a large number of individuals to help us create various committees, each with a representative of both Division 17 and CCPTP, the sponsors of the conference. Each committee also had volunteers working with the co-chairs .

Many, many thanks to all the volunteers who helped make this conference the success that it was. We called on many people to help us with the conference, and indeed, their amazing energy and effort helped to transform this into what we hope will be a turning point for counseling psychology.

Nadya Fouad

Editor's Note. Because the Newsletter needed to be rushed to press, the President's column was broken into two pages. The editor apologizes to Nadya Fouad and to Division 17.

2001 Houston Conference Follow-Up

Initial evaluations suggest that the recent conference in Houston was well received by the participants. The Keynote addresses, especially by Rosie Bingham and the Panel of the APA Directorates were rated highly. In general, participants agreed that a) the conference encouraged counseling psychologists to make a difference in serving humanity and communities, b) the conference demonstrated the breadth and depth of Counseling Psychology, and c) the conference promoted a national vision for Counseling Psychology. Participants submitted "Great Ideas" which centered on four themes: a) Continue commitment to social action with more training opportunities in coalition building and community organization skills; b) market our profession as both health service providers equal to medical fields and researchers who can have meaningful impact on the public at large; c) expand our commitment to and involvement in prevention by publicizing evidence-supported prevention strategies (e.g. life skills enhancement, anger management, violence prevention) and creating a media ad campaign; d) expand our understanding of and commitment to multiculturalism by attending to the intersections of diversity and diversity within groups, as modeled by the Multicultural Summit II. The follow-up committee will develop an action plan and keep the membership informed through the Newsletter and APA.

Membership News

The Membership Committee has been busy working on ways to improve service to each of you. In 1999 the Division contracted with APA's Division Services Office to process new member applications, maintain membership records, and problem solve when the need arises around membership issues. This change has resulted in much smoother procedures for all involved.

Given how easy it is to join Division 17 now, we would like to encourage you to invite your colleagues to become members (an application appears on the last page of this Newsletter).

We also would like to encourage those of you who have not yet done so to please renew your APA membership for 2001 today. If you've misplaced the form, contact APA Membership department at (800) 374-2721.

Between July and December, 2000, the following 48 individuals were elected as members of Division 17. Please join me in giving them a warm welcome to our division!

Nancy Gieseler-Devor
 Charme Davidson

Finally, the committee welcomes your questions, comments, and suggestions about how we can better serve your membership needs. Call (970-221-5319) or e-mail (nhansen@fielding.edu) to provide your input.

Nancy Downing Hansen Membership Chair

Associate/Assistant Professor of Counseling Psychology. Penn State Capital College seeks to fill a tenure-track position, beginning Fall 2001, in the area of Counseling Psychology. An earned Ph.D. or Psy.D. in counseling psychology by the time of employment and evidence of potential in action research or applied research is required. Applicants should be licensed or license eligible in Pennsylvania. Graduates from APA-approved programs preferred. Teaching responsibilities may include graduate courses in counseling psychology, as well as a combination of undergraduate courses in counseling, human relations, personality, and psychology of women. The successful candidate will teach the equivalent of three courses a semester, maintain an active research and publication program, advise students, and provide service. There are 15 full-time faculty in Behavioral Sciences, and approximately 350 students majoring in various Behavioral Sciences programs. The programs offer four B.S. and 2 M.A. degrees.

Penn State Capital College is a multi-campus college of Penn State University, with campuses in suburban and downtown Harrisburg and one campus 60 miles north in rural Schuylkill Haven, PA. The area provides easy access to major northeastern cities, including New York, Washington D.C., Philadelphia, and Baltimore. The college has a total of 4,500 undergraduate and graduate students.

Review of applications will begin immediately, and continue until the position is filled. Submit a letter of interest, vita, and names of at least three references to: Chair, Counseling Psychology Search Committee, c/o Dorothy J. Guy, Manager of Human Resources, Penn State Harrisburg, Dept. APA 17, 777 West Harrisburg Pike, Middletown, PA 17057-4898. Penn State is committed to affirmative action, equal opportunity, and the diversity of its workforce.
