Greetings from the Editors

Dear SAS readers, before presenting the current edition of the SAS newsletter, we would like to thank you for making our last edition (Spring 2016) a success! Also, a big thank-you to all our contributors – your continued willingness to engage in thoughtful sharing of ideas and perspectives through the newsletter is just as essential of an ingredient in our recipe of success and collaboration. As the end of our three-year term approaches, we are aware that this newsletter issue is the last in our series. As you may know, we will complete our three years of hosting SAS at Cleveland State University. Also, Dr. Lichtenberg will soon be transitioning to his role as the Past President of Division 17. We wish our best to him and Ball State University, as the new SAS host institution. All individual contributions of this issue recognize the transitions and new beginnings that SAS is witnessing at the moment. Along with reading those, please check out the sections on the upcoming APA Convention events, if you are planning on attending. Thank you for reading! We appreciate having your readership and wish you well.

Radinka J. Samardzic, M.A. & Anil Lalwani, M.S.
Greetings SAS Members,

As our three-year tenure as the SAS Host Institution ends we would like to thank the Society of Counseling Psychology (SCP) community, welcome Ball State University’s SAS Board, and briefly review some of our accomplishments as SAS Host Institution.

We are overwhelmed with the support and encouragement we have received from the SCP community over the last three years. Specifically, we would like to thank the SCP Executive Board for working closely with Cleveland State University’s SAS Board and providing invaluable mentorship. We appreciate the time and effort each board member put forth to ensure our board’s needs were met. We cannot thank you enough!

Next, we would like to welcome and congratulate Ball State University’s Counseling Psychology SAS Board.

Ball State University will officially take over as the next SAS Host Institution at the conclusion of the SCP Business Meeting at the Annual Convention on Saturday, August 6, 2016. Specifically, we look forward to the implementation of their new E-Buddy System and are excited that they are including practitioners as mentors in the SAS E-Mentoring Program. We are also eager to learn more about their proposed Bridging the Gap Award, which will be awarded to students who can establish a connection between their research and practice settings. They plan to provide resources for becoming multiculturally competent and ways to promote social justice efforts.

More information on their initiatives can be found on pages (5 - 6). SAS members, please join us in welcoming Wendy Gonzalez-Canal M.A and Brandon Millsbaugh B.S. (SAS Co-Chairs), Grace Yoder B.A. (Membership Chair), Hunter Sully B.A. (Webmaster), Byron Long B.S. (Social Media Chair), Katie Rider M.A. (Secretary),

During our three-year tenure, we were able to implement many of our SAS pillars—multicultural competence, research and scholarship, ethical practice and professional development, and advocacy and community action. Over the last three years, SAS helped plan and implement student programming for the 2014 Atlanta Counseling Psychology Conference, 27th Great Lakes Regional Counseling Psychology Conference, and 2014, 2015, and 2016 Annual APA Conventions. Aiding in the development and implementation of student programming has helped bridge the gap between students and professionals within the field. Next, we had the opportunity to appoint an estimated 30 different students to leadership positions within SCP and SAS, which will strengthen the leadership pipeline for years to come.

In addition, SAS worked on a student workgroup related to current Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Education Programs (CACREP) accreditation standards and the current student loan debt crisis. Continuing to work on these initiatives has helped impact federal legislation that affects Counseling Psychology students. Also, SAS Co-Chairs are founding members of Grad Students Talk: Psychology Graduate Students Invested in Social Justice, which is a national student advocacy group that has held six nationwide teleconference calls.

Next, the SAS Awards Co-Chairs developed the Social Justice Award and Student Practitioner Award, for the first time in the history of SAS and were able to award eleven different students totaling $5,500. Our Membership Co-Chairs have worked hard to fill vacant program and regional representative positions to help establish connections with SAS members throughout the country. SAS also helped facilitate and develop the first ever SCP webinars—Internship Process: Learning Beyond the Basics and Predoctoral Internship Webinar: Application and Selection of Sites, which had over 160 participants and continues to be available through the SCP website at www.div17.org. Continuing to serve SAS members, we successfully implemented our E-Mentoring Program to connect students with marginalized identities to professionals in the field. We also developed the widely used Counseling Psychology Infographic and transitioned the previous SAS Website into the new SCP format. Overall, we had a successful three years as SAS Host Institution.

All of our accomplishments would not have been possible without a supportive and dedicated SAS Board. We would like to thank them for their timeless efforts and exemplary commitment to the field of Counseling Psychology. SAS members, please join us in recognizing the current and past Cleveland State University SAS Board:

(two years of service), Lindsey Bisgrove, M.A. (two years of service), Dean Malec, M.A. (one year of service), Brittany Carbaugh, M.A. (one year of service), Stephanie Garcia M.A. (one year of service).
serviceo, Sara Nardone, M.S. (one year of service), Keelan Quinn, M.A. (one year of service), Kelly Martincin, M.A (one year of service), Adam Cusner, M.A. (one year of service), and Irina Bransteter, M.A. (one year of service). Additionally, we would like to thank Dr. Donna Schultheiss, our faculty advisor, for her continued leadership and willingness to serve as our mentor for the last three years.

It has been a great ride and we look forward to continue leadership within SCP. We hope to see you in Denver!

With gratitude,

Ashley Oliver and Erica Wiley Whiteman
Co-Chairs, SAS
Greetings from Ball State University!

Wendy Gonzalez-Canal M.A and Brandon Millspaugh B.S.

Incoming SAS Co-Chairs, Student Affiliates of Seventeen

As the upcoming host institution, we are committed to furthering the mission set forth by the Society of Counseling Psychology (SCP) through the promotion of the following pillars: 1) Scholarship, Collaboration, and Engagement, 2) Multiculturalism, 3) Social Justice and Advocacy, and 4) Prevention and Promotion in Mental Health. Through the implementation of the aforementioned pillars, we intend to increase SAS membership and professional participation of both undergraduate and graduate students.

Through our first pillar of Scholarship, Collaboration, and Engagement (SEC), we intend to further integrate science and practice by bringing students together with a variety of interests within Counseling Psychology. In order to achieve this goal, we aim to create opportunities for affiliates to meet in person by utilizing the SAS Program Representative Network. We also intend to continue and expand CSU’s E-Mentoring initiative by contacting faculty at various programs via program representatives to assess participation interest. Similarly, our E-Buddy System will utilize program representatives to contact students in their school who are interested in developing a relationship with other individuals with similar minority identities in other programs.

Through our second pillar, Multiculturalism, we aim to not only support and encourage diversity in a multitude of settings but also focus on expanding awareness to multicultural engagement in research and practice.

To this end, we aim to facilitate collaboration across academic settings through networking opportunities at the annual Great Lakes Regional Psychology Conference, feature relevant resources for multicultural practice on the SAS website, and translate "multicultural competence" from an “ivory tower” buzzword to a real-life demonstration by interviewing current practitioners and researchers in the field.

Furthermore, through our Social Justice and Advocacy pillar we aim to better prepare future counseling psychologists by increasing awareness of social injustices and promoting social justice efforts. Throughout our time as SAS host institution, we will increase awareness of ongoing social justice efforts and promote the development of additional efforts by student affiliates. We will highlight legislative issues and calls for action, organize panel discussions with counseling psychologists who have incorporated social justice in their careers at professional conferences, and encourage students to engage in social justice research as well as practice.

Finally, through our Prevention and Promotion in Mental Health pillar we will focus on the health and well-being of student members, career professionals, and the community by highlighting prevention efforts and encouraging individuals to integrate these efforts into their personal and professional lives.
As the SAS host institution, we will highlight prevention efforts across systemic levels and professional roles and encourage SAS members to utilize these efforts in their personal and professional lives by providing online resources for prevention, self-care, and ethical practice decision-making. This will be accomplished by utilizing social media, the SAS website, listserv, and efforts developed and implemented by CSU. Ultimately, we hope to increase membership and participation in SAS, while promoting awareness of issues that are of paramount importance to the field of Counseling Psychology. As we embark on this journey we would like to thank our faculty advisor, Dr. Sharon Bowman, our board, and the current CSU board for their continued support and collaboration during this transitional period.
